North Abington Defeats Quincy

A new system of marking adopted at the dual meet of the North Abington and the Quincy Y. M. C. A.'s on Saturday evening at the Quincy gym, and it proved advantageous to the visiting team. The Quincy's took first place in three of the five events, and were second twice, but somehow when the points were added North Abington had 1142 and Quincy but 1040.

In the opening event the 15 yd. dash, the first four places counted 100, 75, 50 and 25, and Quincy took the first and third scoring 150 points Duncan of Quincy first, Craig of Quincy third, Orcutt of North Abington fourth. Time 2 1-5s.

In the three broad jumps the North | many attended two or three services. Abington's gained, the totals being 281 to 247, the first three places went as follows: Shaw of North Abington first, Orcutt of North Abington second, Craig of North Abington third. Distance 26 ft. 10 in.

First and second prizes went to Quincy boys in the shot put, but the totals were 287 to 256 in favor of Abington which gave them the lead. Individual records were: Histen of Quincy first, Duncan of Quincy second, Orcutt of North Abington third. Distance 38 ft. 10 in.

Duncan led in the potato race, but the other three prizes went to the visitors who won 150 to 100, as folows: Duncan of Quincy first, Orcutt of North Abington second, Calkins of North Abington third. Craig of North Abington fourth. Time 31 1-5s.

In Defence of Christian Science

Editor of the Ledger:

If the "Knell of Christian Science" -or in other words, of God's omnipoence-has been sounded as announced exclusively in a communication in the Daily Ledger of Tuesday last, the Almighty appears not to have heard it. The sun still seems to rise, the earth revolves in its orbit, the planets ontinue in their accustomed posiions and move in their ordered courses with "no variableness neither shadow of turning;" all which s in accordance with the Christian Science understanding that God is all in all; that there is one mind harmoniously controlling all.

Christian Science is the science which Christ applied to the healing of sin, disease and death. That it is an abolute science is proven by the unvarying results attending it's demonstration by Him. That it is based on truth is proven by the fact that falsehood and ignorance have always been opposed to it and it's exponents That Christ was universalsuccessful in using it, proves that He understood it perfectly. When Mrs. Eddy discovered the principle of Christian Science, she established no new facts or principles, but did give understanding of an unutilized power far greater than electricity, to those who followed her researches and were willing to prove their understanding by demonstrating through actual tests, the availablity of the Almighty for all good.

A Coincidence.

Sunday evening at the Point church, Miss M. Sampson of Quincy led the C. E. meeting. The topic was "The Pro-Board of Trade will be held Wednesday gress of the Afro-American" and it was treated educationally, industrially and religiously by the leader and the young people in attendance. Miss Sampson's father, the late Alfred Sampson, was one of the first deacons of the Washington Street Congregational church. The family then lived in their beautiful home at No. 5 Sargents lane. With the change in the industries of that section of Quincy, from the stone quarrying business to that of ship-building, there has been a change in the population and people of the Point. It was [an interesting co-incidence, that A dance is to be given at Faxon on the very afternoon of the day when hall on Tuesday evening for the older Miss Sampson spoke of 'the progress children of First Church Sunday school. of the Afro-American," there occurred the baptism of an Afro-American, in the house, (now a boarding-house) at No. 5 Sargents lane.

Pleasing Concert

There was a large crowd at Faxon hall Saturday night at the concert given under the auspices of the Scandinavian Republican club. The program was quite a lengthy one and every number was a feature in itself. The several artists who contributed numbers were greatly enjoyed, and the audience showed their appreciation with loud applause which called for encores, which were freely given.

PLANS OF THE DEFENSE

Confident That Thaw Will Be Declared Sane and That Trial Will Be Speedily Resumed --Jerome Not of Same Opinion

New York, April 2 .- When Mrs. Evelyn Thaw made her daily visit to her husband yesterday a process server handed her a subpoena directing her to appear before the lunacy commission today. Mrs. Thaw appeared very much disturbed. "Do they expect me to testify against my husband?" she asked. She was told that her presence probably was desired merely as a matter of routine, but this did not seem to reassure her. Mr. Jerome declined to make known his purpose in calling Mrs.

The trial was adjourned last week until yesterday and when the jury was called before the court Justice Fitzgerald again adjourned the case until Thursday. Should the commission find that Thaw is today legally insane the trial will be stopped, but if they find otherwise, the trial will continue as

An important development in the court proceedings against Thaw is the announcement by counsel for the prisoner that the Thaw side rests, so far as further testimony by their service is concerned, before the lunacy commission. The defense believes this will help to bring this particular hearing to a close by tonight, so that the trial, delayed for more than a week by the movement to determine Thaw's sanity at the present time, can be immediately resumed. The defense assumes, of that Thaw is now sane. In fact, they are supremely confident of such an outcome, basing their opinion on the splendid showing Thaw is said to have made when questioned by the commis-

District Attorney Jerome does not share the opinion of the defense that the commission will conclude its hearng today. He said the defense was assuming too much, and expressed the belief that several days would elapse before the commission reported.

Mr. Jerome believes that the commission will hear his alienists and he hopes. besides, that the testimony of Dr. Hamfiton will be admitted. There is no doubt that the hearing will be proonged if the state's allenists are alowed to testify as fully as Jerome wishes them to do, but the defense's lawyers believe that they will only be permitted to tell what they think Thaw's present condition, and facts of conclusions are based, will be elimi-

Rheumatism Cannot Be Cured Unless Uric-O is Used

of Uric-O in Quincy. The Rheumatie person is sceptical regarding the claims of almost any remedy advertised as a cure for Rhuematism and one can scarcely blame him for being so. All the plasters and liniments combined never actually cured a case of Rheumatism. They may relieve it one quarter, but it is sure to break out somewhere else. The only sure way to cure Rheumatism, is to drive it from the system, for as along as the Uric and Rheumatie Acid remains in the blood, one is never entirely free from the trouble. This is where the value of Uric-O as a permanent cure for Rheumatism comes in. It seeks out the Rheumatie poison in the blood, muscles and kindeys, renders it inert and harmless and drives it out of the system. That is why Uric-O is such an admirable and effective cure for Rheumatism.

The chief reason that Uric-O is such a wonderful cure for Rheumatism is, that it is designed and prepared to cure Rheumatism and Rheumatism only. It does not contain any alcohol or other so called tonics to make one "feel good" for the time being, but is composed of antidots for the rheumatic acid.

Difficult to Secure Loans

Editors Daily Ledger:

Why is it so exceedingly difficult to obtain a loan in Quincy on real estate situated in the city? This is a question that should engage the attention of the Board of Trade, the Citizens' Association, and every other individual or organization that desires to have our city grow bigger or busier.

That present conditions are unsatis factory (and discouraging for those who deal in land) no fair-minded man can deny. It is a common thing for a party after being repulsed at our local banks to go to a bank in some other city or town and get a loan on the same property.

It would be interesting to know the why and the wherefore of this unprogressive condition; also whether a remedy can be obtained that Quincy may grow better, but it can never grow bigger or busier until real estate is recognized and treated as desirable security within her borders.

Daylight Burglars At Atlantic

A daring robbery was attempted Tuesday afternoon when the house of Mr. and Mrs. James O'Connell of Holoke street at Atlantic was broken into between two and three o'clock. If t had not been for the barking of the oull dog who was shut up in the kitchen, the burglars might have had things their own way, but the dog scratched the door of his prison in his attempts to get at the intruders and his howls warned the men that suspicion might be excited if they continued.

The lower floor is arranged so that every room opens into the other. The men entered by the dining room which opens out onto the side piazza. In order to go further they had to tackle the kitchen and the dog, so that they remained where they were and took nothing of any importance, leaving even the silver untouched. An empty pocket-book was found on the floor but Mrs. O'Connell says that it was her best pocket-book and she never keeps any money in it except when she goes away. During the day Mr. and Mrs. O'Connell are always away and their only son attends the Quincy school. He came home as usual to get his lunch and left everything locked up. When he returned at 3.30, he found the side door in a shocking condition, plainly showing the work of amateur burglars. It was open, and when he got in he discovered everything in the dining room turned upside down. Roosevelt's Reply to Accusation of Seeking Aid

A SENSATIONAL EPISODE

Railroad King Said He Was Urged to Raise Campaign Fund, In Keturn For Which Depew Was to Be Made Ambassador to France

Washington, April 3 .- With the pubication of sensational correspondence, President Roosevelt has locked horns as it is supposed to be by refrigerator with E. H. Harriman, the railroad king, and in diplomatic language called him He followed this up by quoting a letter he had written to Representative Sherman of New York last October, in which he compared Harriman with 'Debs, Moyer or Haywood." This sentiment of the president was in comment on a boast which Harriman was alleged to have made to Sherman that "he could buy state legislatures, congress, and, if necessary, the judiciary."

The sensational episode started with the publication in New York of a letter written in January, 1906, by Harriman to Sidney Webster of New York. Webster is a brother-in-law of Stuyvesant Fish, who was recently deposed by Harriman as president of the Illinois Central. In this letter Harriman and urged him to raise a fund for the in danger of being lost for want of between them that Senator Depew would be made ambassador to France He says he went to New York and raised a fund of $200,000; that this amount enabled the Republicans to win the election, but that when he went back to Washington, Roosevelt broke his promise about Depew. In the same letter he unfavorably criticised Thomas F. Ryan and the present secretary of state, Elihu Root, and said a "combination of circumstances had brought together the Ryan-Root-Roosevelt element."

The letter evidently raised the president's anger to a white heat. As the first shot he characterized the statement of Harriman as "deliberate and wilful untruth that by rights should be characterized by an even shorter and more

These letters were called Harriman which Sherman made to the with the supposed poolroom syndicate. president, and in them the latter quotes freely from correspondence between 81 Nightingale Ave., South Quincy himself (Roosevelt) and Harriman and gives his opinion with great frankness in this letter that he compares Harriman to "Debs, Moyer and Haywood," Debs being the noted Socialist leader and Moyer and Haywood being classed as socialist agitators. The correspondence gives much "inside history" regarding New York politics, including the efforts of prominent men to make James Hazen Hyde ambassador to France, and on the whole it has caused a greater rattling of political dry bones than anything in

The president, as a parting shot, last night said he felt particularly pleased because "within the last few days he had been attacked by both ex-Senator Burton and Harriman." Burton has just come out of jail, and classifying him with Harriman was considered a very neat and telling thrust.

SAYS GRAFT IS RIFE

Rainey Criticises Panama Canal Commissary Department

New York, April 3 .- Congressman Rainey of Illinois, after spending eight days in the Panama canal zone, returned here enthusiastic over the progress made on the great waterway, but most unfavorably impressed with the management of the commissary department. A careful investigation of the commissariat would, Rainey believes, bring to light a scandal "second only to the bum meat scandal of the Spanish American war." The head of the department, he says, is overworked, and details left to subordinates are carelessly taken care of. The chief trouble, he thinks, lies in the fact that meat which leaves the United States in good condition and arrives at the isthmus well preserved is not met at the docks cars, but instead is leisurely transferred in a temperature of between 80 and 90 degrees with the result that, unless served with a strong garlic dressing or gravy, it is unpalatable.

Mr. Rainey says that he will prove that the lunch served to the congres sional party that recently visited the isthmus, and which was supposed to consist of the same menu served daily to canal workers at a cost of 30 cents a man, was in reality ordered five days in advance and cost $1.65 a plate. While the commissariat is supposed to serve In a reply given out by Harriman last | food at cost, the stewards, he says, bought in the United States for $3 a pair declares, at $8 a pair. CHAPTER XIII. Duncombe said finally, "the whole history of my wanderings. 1 feel like a man who has been beating the air, who has been at war with unseen and irresistible forces. 1 never seemed to have a chance. In plain words, I have failed utterly!" The two men were sitting in a room impossible of classification. It might have been a study, smoking room or gun room. The walls were adorned with stags' heads and various trophies of the chase. There were guns and ri fles in plenty in a rack by the chimneypiece, a row of bookcases along the north wall, golf clubs, cricket bats and foils everywhere. A pile of logs ready for burning stood in the open grate. and magnificent rugs were spread about the floor. Nowhere was there the slightest trace of a woman's presence, for Duncombe had no sisters, and his was entirely a bachelor household. Duncombe himself and Andrew Pel ham were seated in great easy chairs in front of the open window. It was his first fine evening at home, and he was drinking in great drafts of the fresh, pure air, fragrant with the perfume of roses and great clusters of wallflowers. Paris had seemed to him like a great oven. All the time he had been half stiffed, and yet he knew very well that at a word from Spencer he would have returned there at an hour's notice. He knew, too, that the hom which he had loved all his days could never be quite the same place to him

Andrew roused himself from rather a prolonged silence.

"You were a brick to go, George," he said. "It is more than any one else in the world would have done for me." Duncombe laughed a little uneasily He knocked the ashes from his pipe and refilled it slowly.

Then, without a word to any one, the sister also rushes off to Paris and vanishes from the face of the earth after a series of extraordinary proceedings. Thaw to Be Private y Examined by Lunacy Board

CONFLICTING TESTIMONY

Views of Alienists So Widely Divergent That Commission Concludes to Have a Mental and Physical Test

New York, April 3 .- It was definitely stated last night, after a session which lasted from 10:30 o'clock in the mornng until 6:30 p. m., with an interval of only 40 minutes for luncheon, that the lunacy commission which is inquiring into the present mental state of Harry K. Thaw will conclude its labors today and will have reported its conclusions to Justice Fitzgerald before the hour set for the Thaw jury to report in court

There will be a brief public session f the commission today to hear a final witness—an alienist—offered by Dis trict Attorney Jerome and then will folow a private mental and physical examination of the defendant. It is stated that only the members of the commission and the official stenographer will be present at Thaw's last ordea both the attorneys for the defense and he district attorney being barred.

The announcement that the commis sion desires to renew its private examination of Thaw came at the end of a day of many witnesses and was in the nature of a complete surprise. The deision was probably due to the conflicting character of the testimony heard yesterday. It was another battle of exnerts, with the alienists engaged by the district attorney declaring Thay to be absolutely incapable of understanding his own condition, of realiz ing the nature of the charge against him or of rationally conferring with counsel, while the doctors engaged by the defense declared that Thaw throughout the trial had acted in a rational manner had rationally advised his counsel in their hearing and fully understood and appreciated everything connected with his case and trial.

The experts for the prosecution admitted that they had reached their conlusions as to Thaw's present state of mental unsoundness from distant observations of him in the courtroom and from writings alleged to have emanated from him during the trial Among ti latter were 24 pages of newspaper clippings and memoranda written by Thaw as suggestions to his chief attorney, Delphin M. Delmas, for his summing up address to the jury. Jerome's experts declared these writings, intro-This Story be continued duced before the commission by the dendant's own counsel to prove his sanity, were the writings of an insane man. The experts for the defense declared there was absolutely nothing in the writings upon which to predicate an opinion of mental unsoundness.

After the experts had finished Delmas himself took the stand, declared that many of Thaw's suggestions were most valuable, and that he intended to inorporate some of the suggestions in his summing up address. The alienists for the defense, in testifying, declared that they had had the advantage of constant personal examinations of the defendant, while the prosecution's witnesses had not. The Tombs physician, two chaplains of the city prison, several guards and a probation officer took the stand and testified that Thaw in prison has acted and spoken like a rational man in every

The commission decided to admit the much discussed testimony of Dr. Hamilton, who stated that he made four examinations of Thaw, the last in July, 1906. He came to the conclusion at | HENRY L. KINCAIDE & CO. that time that Thaw was suffering from chronic delusional insanity, of paranoia, and still held to this belief. On cross-examination Hamilton admitted he had not examined the defendant recently. The defendant's counsel fought against Hamilton's testimony to the very last. Dr. Flint gave a new and picturesque touch to the form of insanity from which it is alleged Thaw is suffering by declaring that his former paranolaca delusions of persecution are rapidly changing into "delusions of grandeur. Evelyn Thaw was present during all of yesterday's session. It soon became evident, however, that she was not to be called as a witness, as Jerome chapter is just entering upon its twelfth year and is in a most prosperous condition, financially and as to nembership.

As usual a short business session was held. In the absence of Mrs. Charles Wilson, Mrs. Paige acted as secretary pro tem.

Announcement was made of the leath of Mrs. John F. Heckman of Weymouth, recording secretary of the State society and well known to Adams chapter. It was voted to send a letter of sympathy to Mr. Heckman. It was voted to have a committee from the chapter receive visitors to the Adams house during old home week.

At the close of the business an attractive program was given, opening with original monologues by Mr. Erastus Osgood of Wollaston.

Mr. Osgood as an author is familiar to many and it was a great pleasure to have him give his own writings. His first selection was "Hamlet Under Difficulties" which was followed by, "Ten Feet Two and Two Feet Ten," and "Miss Callahan's Pink Tea." Mr. Osgood was enthusistically encored after each monoogue, and after the meeting several members expressed personally their pleasure. Mr. Osgood is in such demand that he had to hurry from the meeting to fulfill other engagements. Besides the monologues there was most interesting paper on "Dolly Madison," written by Mrs. Charles Belcher. As Mrs. Belcher was suffering with a cold she delegated the reading of the paper to Mrs. Porter who did it justice, reading clearly and entertainingly.

During the social hour the hostesses Mrs. Rogers, Mrs. Magee and Mrs cake, salted nuts etc. It was one of the best meetings of the season, enjoyed alike by members and guests.

The May meeting will be at Braintree with Mrs. Dyer, Mrs. Sprague and elected mayor of this city, having a plutality of 13,121 votes over Mayor Dunne. The issues in the campaign have been largely based upon the improvement of the local traction systems. Both parties agreed that present conditions are intolerable, but differed as to the best method of revising them. The Demoeratic party, headed by Dunne, stood for immediate municipal ownership through condemnation of the street car property if the result could not be obtained in any other way. The Republican party favored ordinances which were recently passed by a Democratic city council over the veto of Dunne. These ordinances provided for 20-year franchises for the street car companies, the city retaining the right to purchase the systems for $50,000,000 plus the amount to be spent for immediate rehabilitation of the lines, six months' notice being necessary of the city's intention to acquire the property. The ordinances also provide for universal transfers throughout the city, a profits of the companies to be paid to the fact that the Bigelows have not yet recity. These ordinances were approved yesterday by a majority of about 40,000. The campaign has been the most vicious the city has ever known. Charges and counter-charges have been hurled, the personal lives of the candidates have been discussed and speakers on both sides have indulged in tirades filled with invective and abuse. William R. Clergymen And Laymen Discuss It In Open Parliament

The open parliament to discuss Sunday observance, held at the Memorial Congregational church at Atlantic on Wednesday evening was not as largely attended as expected, but a very small number being present. Rev. J. G. Miller, the pastor of the church, presided, and in opening said that it was felt that there was need of some sort of a mens or citizenship club in Atlantic. that could come together occasionally and discuss local questious, and that while this meeting was small it might lead up to something influential.

The speakers of the evening were Rev. Dr. William H. Allbright of Dorchester, a director in the Sabbath Protective League; H. O. Cassidy, Levi H. Turner and Rev. George L. Collyer.

Dr. Allbright said that there were many things that were illegal but which had been tolerated. Now some go so far that they want to do these things under the sanction of the law. He spoke of the ten bills that were before the Legislature looking to a more open Sunday. The attitude of many was that Sunday was made for man to do just as he pleases. There was no power on earth to hold this Sabbath but the church. Upon motion of J. W. Pratt it was If Sunday goes he did not believe the church would remain. It the church

Sabbath it would come out right. H. O. Cassidy said a stand should be tion. The Sabbath day was one of rest and was to be kept holy. Man needs a rest every seven days. It is absolutely necessary. We cannot afford to give up this one day in seven. Levi H. Turner did not agree fully with the league. The word holy does not mean worship; it means a thing set apart. Sunday is a day of rest. A man has a right to observe the day anyway that will confer upon him the greatest pleasure, so long as he does not conflict with the rights of others. The church would stop the desecration of Sunday if they could, but they cannot. Wage earners in all large centres hate the dust on which the shadow of the church gone out of print within a few weeks of falls, because the church is not doing its duty.

Rev. George O. Collyer said there was no basis for desecration of the Sabbath, except that which may be found in the Book. No man has a right to think from his own point of view. If he had it would be the incarnation of selfishness. Society is a compromise. One man wants one thing and another somethe Sabbath in nature. If Christ were to speak today he would permit us to do a great many things that are not in armony with our education of Sabbath observance. You must decide how you will rest and how you will worship. Before adjourning the meeting adopted resolutions in opposition to any

It is authoritatively declared that the real reason for Harriman's interest in the election of the state ticket in New York in 1904 was that he desired to advance his own ambitions. It is asserted that Harriman wanted the position of senator now filled by Mr. Depew and that this was the reason why he was anxious to have him appointed ambassador to Paris. The inference from Hariman's attitude was that if Depew could be induced to go to Paris that Governor Higgins was prepared to appoint him to the vacancy.

To some of his visitors the president referred to the statement made public by Judge Alton B. CHAPTER XIV HE door of the omnibus was opened as Duncombe stepped over the low wall into the road. A tall man in a long, light inverness descended.

"Hello, Duncombe!" he exclaimed, holding out his hand. "I was coming in to see you for a moment."

"Good man!" Duncombe answered. Bring your friends, won't you?" He held open the gate hospitably but Lord Runton shook his head.

"I only wanted a word with you." he said. "We're all starving, and if you don't mind we'll get on as quickly as we can. About tomorrow. You shoot with us, of course."

"Delighted!" Duncombe answered. "Cresswell met me at the station, Lord Runton continued. "I'd drawn out a plan for the shoot, but it seems that Cresswell-old fool-hasn't got his parvest in from the two fields by Ketton's Gorse. Gives Credit

Editors of the Daily Ledger:

Kindly allow me just a few words to dent at the Winthrop park fire on Monday morning. And, at the same time, let the credit be placed where it belongs. I did not, as some newspapers have stated, send a man to ring an tive. And, by the way of parenthesis, valuable in such an emergency, because arrives at a box to sound an alarm. I such a scheme will tend to the ringing proud. of false fire alarms, but as nearly every other box is so equipped it is not unreasonable to ask that all boxes be so supplied. It would seem to be safer to risk a false alarm of fire once in a while rather than sacrifice human life because

Flounder, Bluefish a fire alarm box. In regard to the editorial in the Daily Ledger, it would seem more appropriate to the writer that some action should be started to procure either a Carnegie or Massachusetts Humane Society medal or Mr. Charles A. Johnson, the brave husband and father who gathered his little family around him in that dark. smoke-filled room and, while shouting words of encouragement to them, lowered them, a wife and five children. to the ground by aid of a rope and with not a soul in the world to stand by and give him aid. It was a remarkable case of coolness and courage under conditions that a man never wants to meet

if they can be avoided. That the writer's life was in danger, as suggested by your complimentary curred to him, and does not now, on mature reflection, seem to have been ossible. The writer simply took th precaution, that all firemen do, of having the bottom door open when he went up the stairs to Mr. Johnson's kitchen. With a clear stairway behind and an open door at the bottom the danger to life in a run for escape was extremely remote unless there should be a fire under the stairs which was not the cas

It took only a glance to see that the dames were working upwards and that, inless extinguished, they would work through to the roof before they would work downward. That being the case here was plenty of time to get into the kitchen and out again, providing one could stand a little smoke which, really, was more nauseating than dangerous inless one stayed too long.

And right here let credit be given the work of our Fire department, and the prompt response of police officers Bishop, Dineen and Doran. I do not believe that our fire apparatus ever made a quicker hitch or a faster run through dark, unlighted streets. The way in which the firemen and police officers rushed into the smoke-filled building, without ever stopping to find out where danger lay, was commendable in the highest degree. They showed themselves to be a credit to our city and the departments which they repre-

It is gratifying to the citizens of Quincy to know that when they lie down to sleep at night their welfare is being guarded by such men who stop at no risk to render aid and save life. In these days, when hostile criticism is so freely dispensed, and mostly by unknowing ones, it is a pleasure to say a few words of commendation for these public servants of our city, especially when they are so well merited as in the T. LUNACY BOARD'S REPORT

Declaration That Defendant Is Sane Confirmed by the Court-District Attorney Jerome Strenuously Objects

New York, April 5.—The latest issue raised in connection with the trial of Harry K. Thaw will be carried before the appellate division of the supreme

After an examination of authorities and a study of the facts involved that continued from the hour that court adjourned vesterday, District Attorney Jerome late last night determined to ask the higher court to review the action of Judge Fitzgerald, who refused to give the prosecutor access to the minutes of the lunacy commission that earlier in the day had declared Thaw sane within the boundaries prescribed by the court for his examination. Adjournment had been taken until

Monday to allow Jerome to decide whether he would challenge the validity of yesterday's proceedings, and his deision to do so was reached earlier than had been expected. Jerome will, it is expected make his formal motion be fore a member of the appellate bench today or tomorrow. Should ne fail, the trial will probably be continued Mon

If, on the other hand, the higher court entertains his appeal, a stay of the trial probably be secured. This will mean an indefinite delay in the trial of the district attorney would require considerable time to examine the minutes of the lunacy commission before he would be prepared to resume the trial.

Harry K. Thaw was declared sane by the unanimous report of the commission in lunacy appointed some two weeks ago to inquire into his present menta

The moment the decision was handed down from Justice Fitzgerald's desk, District Attorney Jerome was on his feet vigorously protesting against its onfirmation by the court. He charged that he had been excluded from the last session of the commission and demanded to be allowed to have access to Thaw was not in court to hear the decision. The jury which has heard the testimony against him was also exwere present, however, and their keen delight over the announcement of the favorable report from the lunacy com mission was turned into alarm at the unexpected attitude of the district at torney, whose threat to take the matter before the appellate division of the court seemed to involve another serious Telay in the long-drawn-out trial.

The news of the commission's unant mous verdict as to his present sanity was carried to Thaw in the prisoner's pen. He expressed satisfaction, but not surprise. Swettenham Opeyed Order, but Resignation Went With It London, April 5.-The Standard de clares it is able to publish for the first time the circumstances leading to the resignation of Sir Alexander Swettonham as governor of Jamaica. The pa per says that according to Swettenham's own statement in a letter to an inti mate friend he resigned in consequence of a peremptory demand from the colonial office to apologize to Rear Admira Davis. To this Swettenham replied that if such a course were really nec essary, he would do so with pleasure carried with it his resignation. Swettenham denies that there was any dispute between him and the American admiral at the time of the Kingston earthquake, saying: "We were the best of friends during th whole time the admiral was here. He had the use of one of my private car riages and drove around with my private secretary,"

but that such a compulsory apology

The Standard adds that this letter was written privately, as one friend might write to another, but it fell into the hands of a negro newspaper correspondent. If the documents referring to the resignation of Swettenham were published, the paper concludes, it would be found that the statement that he appeared to be retired "on the ground of age" was entirely misleading.

The Massachusetts Savings Insur ance League announces the selection of George H. Brown, the well known lawyer, and F. W. Plummer, principal of Woodward Institute, to represent this part of the state on the committee of 100 which the league is organizng to help the movement to open savings bank insurance departments.

The leaders of the movement, Louis D. Brandeis of Boston, and Representative White of Brookline, report considerable encouragement as a result of the hearings before the Insurance Committee at the State House. It is felt that the bill drafted embodies the recommendations made by Governor Guild in his last inaugural address. The old age annuity feature has been particularly commended by ex-Gov. Douglas and by the public

The only objection to the plan namely, that certain savings banks was met at last Tuesday's hearing by Mr. Brandeis, who explained that under the bill drawn up the savings banks were at liberty to open insurance departments or not, as they pleased, but that the number already in line was sufficiently large to afford 74 Independence Avenue. fair test of the idea.

If, as generally expected, the bil should reach the legislature and be favorably acted upon, it is the intention of the Massachusetts Savings Insurance League to carry on its campaign so that wage-earners will take advantage of the liberal provisions of the bill. Some features of this campaign of education will be in charge of the committee of 100.

Makarias Say Bowdoins Squealed

Editors Quincy Daily Ledger: Will you kindly publish the following, if space will permit.

Several days ago there appeared in the Ledger the schedule of the Bowdoins (Joseph L. Ford manager), stating that t was up to the Makaria and Bigelows to defend their title. As manager of the Makaria I wrote to Mr. Ford Apri and on April 3, received following: Dear Sir: We accept your offer and we will be at Merrymount playground on May 11 to play Makaria. What arrangements will be made about receipts, and what inducements are we to receive? (signed) J. L. Ford manager Bowdoin Tonight I saw Mr. Ford who squealed out of the game, because we would not pay expenses to them, and they claim to be playing on the Point playground as their home grounds.

They were offered a return game on the same arrangements and then they wanted a guarantee of semi professional terms. As we are playing only amateur ball we refused.

We feel that after accepting our chalange they have squealed out of it. We hope that the base ball patrons of Quiney want clean amateur ball, which is the only kind Makaria has played and will play, and which the Bowdoins Yours respectfully,

Notable Services At Bethany Church The Sermon by Rev. Edward Norton

Edward Norton, the pastor emeritus of Bethany Congregational church on Sunday, on the occasion of the 75th anniversary of the church, crowding the auditorium and balcony. On the platform were Rev. E. N, Hardy, Ph. D., the pastor; Rev. Edward Norton and also Eber E. Craig the pastor's assistant.

Rev. Mr. Norton said he had been asked to speak of the beginnings of the church, and an appropriate text would be Psalms 44:1-"We have heard with our ears, O God, our fathers have told us, what work thou didst in their days, in the days of

Councilmen Accept Invitation To Inspect

High School

In response to an invitation of Aaron cil visited the school building Saturday William H. Fay reviewed the list afternoon to inspect. Among those ticularly of Deacons Smalley, Hard- Chairman Hunting, D. E. Wadsworth, Mr. Norton told of the building of wick, Clapp, Mitchell, Chase and Dr. E. H. Bushnell, A. W. Newcomb, Fred H. Smith and John L. Miller of the School Committee. Architect Gould, Contractor Lord and Sub-Contractor Thomas were also present, and President W. H. Nichols of the Council

The officials were shown over the building by Mr. Gould, and all seemed very much pleased with the interior arrangement of the building. It certainly is fine and nicely arranged. The building is practically completed with the exception of the gymnasium. All that remains here is to finish the floor. The trouble seems to be as to whether the floor shall be of wood or concrete.

The assembly hall is certainly very fine. This is now all completed and ready for use except getting the official approval of the State Police.

There is probably no finer hall in the city. There is also a wide and roomy balcony over the hall so that a large number of people can be accommodated. The most of the rooms are well lighted, although there are some of the rooms where the light seems rather dim. The laboratories on the upper floor are all completed and are in use as are all the school rooms that are needed at present. In the basement the manual training and cooking rooms are already to be put to use at any time.

There is one thing, however, that the visitors noticed and that was the unfinished look of the wood work that was the present church, of the assistance Franklin Hardwick. Reference was in the old building. A Hingham school girl, aged 14, entered Thompson's restaurant in City square late Saturday night. The gir acted queerly and created quite a commotion. Officer Milford was called in and sent the girl to the police station. The girl was evidently mentally unbalanced and after some questioning she told the names of her parents. They were notified and later came to the station and took her home. They said that the girl left home about seven o'clock Saturday and that they had been searching for her among the neighbors.

Bill Passed By House After Vigorous Quincy Protest

In the House Monday afternoon Representatives Sandberg and Hultman of Quincy both made a strenuous protest against the bill which would make it possible for the Railroad Commissioners to override the action of the city of Quincy in refusing to allow the Old Colony Street railway company to transport freight through the streets of the city.

It was a debate which had begun last Friday. Both of the Quincy members then spoke against the bill, which makes the Railroad Commissioners a board higher than the local authorities, so that in case a city or town should object to the passage of a company through its limits, the company could appeal to the Railroad Commissioners and so override the

It was argued for the bill that a city or town which would prevent the construction of a through line was playing the part of a dog in the manger. On the other hand, the rights of ocal self government were urged and a motion of Mr. Hultman to refer the next legislature was carried by vote of 73 to 71. Monday, on the plea that this was a very close vote, Mr. McKnight of Boston moved to reconsider. This was strongly debated on both sides. Debate was then renewed at length on the merits of the bill, the speakers being about the same. A motion to postpone to Thursday, made by Mr. Dean of Wakefield was lost by a large majority.

Mr. Hultman of Quincy again spoke for his motion to refer to the next Legislature. This was no "missing link" proposition, he said, but involved the whole question of local rights. The bill put large power into the hand of the Railroad Commissioners, who were to decide what public convenience and necessity required, and then the locality must pay the bills. The bill makes it possible for freight cars to tie up the pasenger traffic. No advertisement of the hearing was made in Norfolk County, and the only daily paper in the county was published in his city. The people of the city were not noti-

Mr. Sandberg explained the Quincy ituation and told how the Street Railvay company had refused to pay for widening 6,000 feet of street for a double track.

Reference to the next Legislature was refused by 71 to 128 on roll call. Mr. Sandberg then moved to amend the bill to exempt Boston . This was defeated without debate, and the bill was passed to be engrossed by a winning vote of 105 to 57.

United States Sailors Preserve Peace at Ceiba

Expedition Engaged In Capturing Honduran Ports Will Not Be Permitted to Bombard Coast Towns

New Orleans, April 9.- That Puerto Cortez was surrendered without fightng and that about 1500 Honduran soliers abandoned the port two days be fore the Nicaraguan troops appeared is the information brought by steamer Anselm, from Puerto Cortez.

The following proclamation was isned to the people of Ceiba by Com mander Fullam of the United States runboat Marietta and Virgil C. Reynlds. United States vice consul:

"The generals of the Honduran army aving left Ceiba, the civil authorities will assume charge of the city governgent. All liquor saloons will be imnediately closed and will remain so. Sailors from the United States ship Marietta will patrol the streets and assist the civil authorities to preserve orler and protect property, foreign or pri rate. The sailors are landed as friends of Honduras. All persons are warned hat there must be no disorder or vio ation of the laws of Honduras and all re advised to remain in their homes rces concentrate at Ceiba they will no nterfere with law-abiding people, and ere need to be no alarm whatever.'

An authoritative statement of grea noment in the relations of the Unite states to Central American republic as been given out at Puerto Cortez. I s to the effect that bombardments of east towns cannot be permitted "dur ing the frequent wars and revolution in Central American states." The statement is by Commander Fullam of the United States gunboat Marietta and is part of a letter to General Estrada, commanding the Nicaraguan expedition engaged in capturing Hon luran ports. In part, the letter reads:

"I have to acknowledge the receipt of your letter of March 25 in answer to my communication of March 24 requesting you to avoid the unnecessary estruction of coast towns by bombard ment. It must be perfectly plain that foreign interests could not possibly be secure if bombardments are permitted On the contrary, such interests would be subjected to the danger of complete destruction in every case.

"If bombardments of coast towns are o be resorted to during the frequen wars and revolutions in Central Amer can states the mercantile interests of all foreigners will be absolutely inse plainly evident that assurances regard. Splendidly situated and bringing in a good income, and at the prices put ing the safety of American and foreign laterests, would be of no value what ever unless bombardments of these un fortified wooden towns are forbidden and it is equally plain that a ship of war ordered here to protect American interests could not be excused for sub jecting these same interests to inevitable ruin by permitting the destruction of these towns by fire and bombard ment. "Fully three-fourths of the valuable mercantile and business houses in hese coast towns are owned by foreignrs. Neither belligerents will be pernitted to occupy or to take cover in hese houses during the course of hostilities.

"Trusting that I may not be compelled to inform the United States government that I am mistaken regarding the attitude of Nicaraguan forces to ward foreign business interests on this coast, and hoping that you will avoid all danger of complications by giving directions that property shall not be subjected to destruction by fire and bombardment, I remain, etc."

AMERICAN OCCUPATION

No Indication That It Will End In the Near Future -Country's Condition Should Be Tested Before National Election

Hayana, April 9.—The members of the committee of insurgents, with whom Secretary Taft and Assistant Secretary give his visitors the date of the withdrawal of the American forces from

At the close of the conference Senators Ayas and Morua Delgado and General Gomez said that Taft had de clared to them that it was impossible to hold elections in Cuba until a complete census of the Island had been taken, which will occupy about four months. He added that municipal and provincial elections would probably be held some time in September, but he would not give any probable date for the presidential elections, simply saying that they would follow the others.

The committee asked that the Moderate governors in the different provinces and the Moderate mayors and city councils be replaced by Liberals, but Taft declared that he would leave that entirely to Governor Magoon. He added that the administration was highly satisfied with the governor's conduct of Cuban affairs and he would be given more authority than ever.

Mr. Taft had a busy afternoon. At 2 o'clock he met the conservatives and discussed the insular situation. He said that owing to economical conditions he considered a nation-l election at an early date to be unwise and recom mended that such election be postponed until the outcome of the municipal and provisional elections can be seen. The conservative representatives expressed their willingness to leave all to the good judgment of the United States.

After this interview representative of all the leading banks of Cuba called upon Taft and asked him to give them one or two years' notice before th holding of national elections, claimin that unless this were done the effect and would be disastrous. The bankers urged Taft not to change the present currency to American money, claiming that so to do would increase the cost of living by 12 percent. The committee the secretary in a similar vein.

Speaking to the correspondent of The Associated Press, Taft said: "Various committees waited on me this after noon. It is impossible to state just what took place, but the consensus of opinion seems to be that it will be wis and even necessary to take a constant before attempting to hold an election. not only under the present provisional government, but under any subsequent government. It would be wise, in order to test the condition of the country and the operation of the election law, to hold a preliminary election, municipal and not national, and the national election should be delayed until the results of the preliminary elections are seen. I have promised to confer with Governor Magoon and to consult Prest dent Roosevelt with a view to further conferences with the Liberals and the Conservatives.

"Other matters are pending concerning which I cannot speak, in the first place because nothing would be gained thereby, and, also, as the Spaniards say, it is not 'convenient.' "

Humiliated by Ragged Garments Groton, N. Y., April 9.—Rather than endure the humiliation of going to school in tattered garments, 13-year-old Lawrence Howe shot himself, inflicting probably a fatal wound. STUDENTS' MORALS

Should Be Given More Attention In Our Colleges

DISSIPATION PREVALENT

Could Be Wiped Out In a Month by Concerted Action of Presidents--Wholesome Advice Oftered by Chancellor Day

New York, April 10 .- That the college presidents of the United States could, if united, control the tendency to intemperance in the colleges, is the bewho will sing for the Wollaston Glee lef of Chancellor Day of Syracuse uni versity, as expressed in his address be fore the Methodist Episcopal confer ence here. In this connection he told of several instances in which he suc eeded in inducing students to forego or the time being at least, certain hat its of intemperance. He is not certain that the reformation continued after the men left college. "But," said he if we can keep them straight four years it will go a long way toward reaking up the habits.

The chancellor said he believes the ollege president has a moral as well as n intellectual responsibility. Chanellor Day said:

"I need mention no names, but we are all apprised of the deprayed condition and the scenes of debauchery in many of our universities. While heads of col leges seem zealous in guiding the stu dent along lines of study, few there are who place morals first. I venture to say that if the college presidents would unite along a common line of though and action this dissipation among the tudents could be wiped out in 30 days.

Morals, he said, were placed first a Syracuse. "At a majority of the othe miversities, however," he continued the student is allowed to come and go as he pleases; to spend his nights in riotous living, to drink, enter pool ooms and waste much energy that should be devoted to his studies.

"I could mention names of college residents who seem devoid of sincere nterest for the morals of their charges. out I shall not do so. All of you know say emphatically, however, that no man ought to seek to evade the responsibility of the moral welfare of young

"I have been criticised in the papers of late," added the chancellor, "for my action on the smoking habit. I believe ou the evidence of the best medical au horities of this land that it is an exceedingly damaging thing physically for a boy of 16 to take up the practice of smoking cigars and cigarets. And no young man of that age in college. with his nerves still immature, should indulge in the habit. We have no law now and then. To those who receive help on their way through college I say Now, if you can spend money for rigars or pipes, or for expensive theatre ickets or other extravagant things, we don't think that we ought to help you.'

Explorer Peary to M ke Another Dash For the Pole

TO MAKE START IN JUNE

Plans Well Matured During the Past Winter, Two Men Furnishing Practically All the Funds For the Expedition

New York, April 10.-The application of Robert E. Peary, U. S. N., for leave of absence of three years, which was approved yesterday by the secretary of the navy, has uncovered the fact that Commander Peary definitely purposes to make another attempt this summer to reach the North Pole. The three years' his famous journey to the farthes point north ever reached by man-87 degrees, 6 minutes-expired last Sunday, and the new leave begins at once.

Preparations for another dash toward the pole have been well under way all winter, but Peary and his associates of the Peary Arctic club have been keeping secret their action, as it was felt that it would be a breach of courtesy if not of discipline, for the naval oth cer to announce his voyage until his superiors made it possible by their approval. The order granting the leave of absence stipulates that the time is to be devoted to Arctic exploration.

June is the month in which the start is to be made, but the exact day has not been settled. The explorer, who has been busy giving lectures, went to Boston yesterday and will return to New Yerk on Saturday, when the work of final preparation will proceed rapidly. Sufficient funds for the next trip to the North Pole have not vet been obtained, but it is stated that there is no uneasiness as to that. Morris K. Jesup and another well known man of wealth, who wishes his connection with the enterprise to be kept secret, furnished practically all of the $150,000 for the purchase of the Roosevelt and the fitting out of the expedition. Jesup has been ill recently, but he maintains his interest in the explorer's efforts to reach the pole.

The Roosevelt is now being refitted with new boilers. Those used during her last voyage did not supply adequate power and this was credited with being one of the greatest drawbacks to the complete success of the expedition. The hull is sound and the changes in interior arrangements changes in interior arrangements which Peary has decided upon will not be expensive.

Captain Robert Bartlett of St. Johns sailing master of the Roosevelt, has been notified to come to New York to superintend the fitting out of the vesse Peary, before the end of his last voyage determined to select his own crew for his next advance on the pole, to avoid the troubles which arose because of un ruly and discontented spirits among his last ship's company. Roy Marvin, a naturalist, and Dr. Louis Wolff, a surgeon, will accompany the expedition. Sledges will again be the dependence of the explorer, and he will again fol low the American route, making a dash across the ice from his winter quarter toward the pole, which he is more confi dent than ever of reaching.

Has Not Received Papers

Boston, April 10.—Commander Pears of a lecture here, in regard to future Arctic explorations: Speaking of the reported leave of absence for three years granted by the navy department, Peary said that he could say nothing in regard to it until he received the papers in the case. He was asked to express his opinion on the Wellman expedition, but refused to comment on it, except to say that he had no use for baloons as a means of reaching the pole

Contest Over Judgeship Ended Washington, April 10.-President Roosevelt has appointed Oscar P. Hundley of Huntsville, Ala., to be a United States district judge for the northern district of Alabama. The president's action ends a long contest for the office. Senator Pettus recently lodged a vigorous protest against Hundley, declaring that the feeling against him was participated in by a large contingent of the Republicans in Alabama. A Presbyterian Proposition

Nashville, April 10.-The executive committee of the Presbyterian church in the United States adopted a report asking the general assembly to organize a layman's missionary movement in the Presbyterian church and that an effort be made to bring the contribution of the church to $1,000,000 per annum for missionary work. The receipts for the present year amounted to $276,000.

Roosevelt For Third Term

St. Paul, April 10.-The Minnesota house of representatives, with a rising vote which the speaker announced was "nearly unanimous," passed concurrent resolutions endorsing President Roosevelt for a third term. During the taking of the vote the Democratic members remained seated.

Servian Towns Under Water Belgrade, April 10.—The widespread floods caused by the melting of the snow are growing more serious. Many towns are practically under water. The military authorities are making every effort to save life and property.

As the result of numerous charges grand jury of Suffolk county investigated the company last fall, but report ed no bill against the directors.

"Who wants to spy upon Miss Fielding?" Andrew exclaimed hoarsely. "She can be the daughter of a multimillionaire or a penniless adventurer for all I care. All I want is to be sure that she isn't Phyllis Poynton." "You are not yet convinced?"

There was a moment's silence. Duncombe walked to the window and re-

"Andrew," he said, "doesn't what I told you just now—make a difference?" Andrew groaned.

"Of course it would," he answered, but-I'm fool enough to feel the same about Phyllis Poynton."

Duncombe, in the full glow of sensations which seemed to him to give a larger and more wonderful outlook on life, felt his sympathies suddenly awakened. Andrew Pelham, his old chum, sitting there with his huge, disfiguring glasses and bowed head, was surely the prototype of all that was pathetic. He forgot all his small irritation at the other's obstinacy. He remembered only their long years of comradeship and the tragedy which Bag Best White Potatoes, $1.50 loomed over the life of his chosen friend. Once more his arm rested

Come, we'll have a drink together now and a pipe afterward."

He walked across to the sideboard, where the glasses and decanters were arranged. Then for the first time he saw upon the tray awaiting him a tele: gram. He gave a little exclamation as he tore it open. Andrew looked up. "What is it, George?" he asked. "A telegram? Duncombe stood with his eyes glued upon the oblong strip of paper. A curious pallor had crept into his face from underneath the healthy tan of his complexion. He was simply wondering how long it would be before those long, powerful fingers seized upon what they sought. He might even then have swept aside the envelope, but he felt no aclination to do so. A sure way to save many a dollar is to trade at all times at this popular food supply store.

A sure way, because the necessities and luxuries of life cost less here than in many Boston stores—because we sell on a very close margin of profit. A few things of especial interest:

100 lb. bag Granulated Sugar, $4.80 Elegant Pastry Flour, $4.50 bbl

These, with Ivory White Flour and Quality Coffee, make an array of offerings that no thrifty housekeeper can afford to decline. It's wise and nice to trade here

State Trees Almost Free

The State Forester, F. W. Rane, State House, Boston, gives notice that he can distribute to a limited number of those white ash two year old trees suitable for setting out for forest purpose. Send $1.00 with order. Express changes will be advanced. No orders received after April 30. Here is the chance for the Park Commissioners who wanted an appropriation of $200 for trees.

The State Forester also offers trees schools of the State. In a letter t school superintendents he says:

In connection with the State forest service, we have a forest nursery, and it has occurred to me that there are of knowledge and economic benefit from having a small collection of forest trees or in the school gardens where they are dows on Maple street side. already established.

Forestry is a subject worthy of promotion, and the simple A B C of fores try can well be begun with our school children. Trees have much of interest in them at any time of the year, and hence can be studied at any season, There is wide interest at present in school gardening; if to it we add som forest nursery work, making it a yearround affair and a perennial rather than for a short season each year, I am sure it will be a happy improvement.

In order to assist any schools in a be ginning, he offers to a limited extent, in so far as seedlings hold out, and w can spare the time to do the work, first come, first served, a collection of seedlings including White Pine, White Ash, Red Spruce and Beech; and seeds including: White Pine, Chestnut, Acorn and White Ash.

Bulletin No. 4, giving instructions for handling and care of the nursery, will be sent with each order.

The only expense to the school requesting this list will be the estimated actual expense in digging, packing, etc., and $1.00 for each collection.

The schools grounds of the city are not large enough for a forest, but the Park Commissioners would undoubted ly set apart quarter acre sections to any school which will experiment. Or ther is vacant land in different parts of the city which owners would rent free t schools for the purpose.

Why He Favors Machinery Bill

Senator Jenney of the Quincy disrict is taking a stand on the machinery bill which his constituents will endorse. In the debate on Wednesday was a petition for legislation to provide that no person should be allowed o insert a provision in a lease or bill of sale that the lessee or purchaser should not use the machinery of any other person. There is but one corporation in business in this state which uses such a provision and no one else desires to exercise such a right. If this is the most beneficial corporation in the state, nothing will he detracted from it by this bill.

"If," he said, "I am so unfortunate as to be obliged to go to a dentist for a set of false teeth, is he to be allowed to say what sort of toothpicks I shall use, what sort of toothbrush I shall use, or what sort of food shall pass by those teeth for the nourishment of my body? Yet this is exactly what this company has sought the right to do." Such a provision as this is not necessary to protect patents; it would tend to destroy patents.

allow the girl to stay, and May then took her to a Mrs. Sullivan on Shaw street where she now is. The court refused to issue a warrant until it was shown that the child had been placed in the hands of Mrs. Dixon. May, who it is alleged abducted her sister, is 18 years of age, and is employed at the Tubular Rivet Works.

King's Daughters

Opportunities

The chief address of the afternoon was by Rev. William E. Gardner of 'hrist church whose subject was "The King's Daughters' opportunities for service."

The speaker said that after hearing about the wonderful work done by the King's Daughters he felt that there were evidences that they were not only improving their opportunities, but saw clearly the opportunities of the future. Continuing he an nounced that the special subject he wished to bring before them was: thenomena that every Christian man and woman should recognize. These are contributions to health made by mental healers, the health classes at at Roxbury. When we consider that our Lord told us to heal the sick, and these healing activities are taking place around us, we should realize that there must be some truth behind all of that activity.

The speaker then gave a descripion of the last word that science has brought forward illustrations to then connected this inner life with that as the best influence of women in the home, in the school, in the office, and in the hospital was uncon scious influence, each woman should improve consciously her inner spir itual life in order that the highes kind of healing influence might con-

he Psalmist in his description of the King's Daughter, said first of all that he was "all glorious within."

The delegates were enthusiastic over the lunch served at noon by Unity circle. The color scheme was vellow, white and green, and daffodils and ferns were the table decoraions. The menu included tomato soup, vegetable and egg salads, cold ham, rolls, orange sherbet, cake with white, green and yellow frosting.

Expressmen In Rum Business

Editors Daily Ledger:

In regard to granting licenses to exresamen. I wish to speak from what I snow, that if licenses are granted to some of them we might as well go to the polls on election day and vote for kitchen barrooms and also one or wheels, as both are carried on to a great extent in Quincy at present.

I think those violaters of the liquor law should be turned down, and at once, and if licenses are to be granted, give those a chance who never violated the law, and they should be kept under very strict rules. Some of those expressmen sell more rum than the minor bar rooms of Boston. Now some of those expressmen never have a parcel of any kind on their teams; all whiskey and beer I think it was time this sort of business was stopped.

Hoping with your kind consideration you will publish this in the Daily Ledger for the benefit of others.

Yours respectfully, R. T. Wylie.

Bible Foretold Of Such Schemes

A few days ago I read in your pape an article, "In Defence of Christian Science" written in answer to "Th Death Knell of Christian Science" by 'Backslider.'

In the second paragraph the writer says "Christian Science is the science" etc. Will the writer pleas state how long "Christian Science has been a science? If "Christian Science" is a science, why is it that he true scientists of the world do no acknowledge it as such? The general impression prevails that if the 12 men are unable to agree at the expiration of 48 hours they will be released from further service. Justice Fitzgerald called a halt. He idmonished the jurors that they were to be guided only by the evidence and were not entitled to hear again the losing speeches of the lawyers. The action of the jury in twice going portions of the testimony read to them was widely commented upon and naturally caused much speculation. It eemed evident that the jury's delibera- act. ions were hingeing upon the question of sanity or insanity of the defendan as shown by the defense. The jury showed an almost startling familiarity with the evidence, and the testimony they desired to hear again was given in part by persons who were not referred to in the summing up speeches either by Delmas or Jerome.

From the manner in which the jurors wished to go over the evidence in all its detail, it was surmised that a verdical if reached at all would be predicated entirely upon the evidence and not upon "the unwritten law."

Harry Thaw's confident air seems never to leave him for any great length of time and a buoyancy of spirit is nearly always apparent. Few men accused of murder in the first degree have awaited the sealing of their fate with the calmness and the happy-go-lucky manner which has characterized Thaw since the jury retired at 5:17 o'clock on Wednesday afternoon.

Twenty-five thousand electric lights and 200 miles of wiring are controlled by one of the largest switchboards in the world, and the heating and ventilating plant is one of the most elaborate and scientific in the world.

In the library the new bookstacks are 11 stories high and have a capacity of 800,000 volumes, while the entire ca pacity is 1,500,000 volumes. The art galleries cover 44,700 square feet and the museum 104,000 feet.

The Important Question of Boarding or Keeping House - However Humble the Beginning of a Home, It Is Better Than the Most Attractive Boarding House. -

Money a Factor But Not Essential

In a home, husband and wife have omething to live for, says John Sneed n letter No. 3 to his son, to be pubished in the Saturday eight page Daily Ledger. He would hitch money to the rear of the vehicle and not in front. There are six illustrations and three ery interesting columns.

"The Making of a Successful Husand," by Caspar S. Yost, is the atest special feature announced for the Saturday eight page Daily Ledger. We shall be surprised if it does not attract more attention than any out out by this paper in some time. t consists of a series of articles bout three columns long dealing in striking and original manner with choosing a wife, the honeymoon, making a home, domestic finances, the cooking problem, deportment in the home, a married man's place, recipocal confidence, your mother-in-law etc. These articles, in the form of etters from a father to his son, pernitting the familiar and effective style of personal correspondence, discuss important subjects with sound philos ophy and fine common sense. While they are interesting enoug

o be almost sensational, they are full with profit by anybody. It will be trange if there are not some better ausbands for reading them. And hink of the wide appeal-husbands who are already made, successfully or otherwise; the wives who endure hem, would be husbands and girls who are in danger from them, parents who realize that they must some time give up their daughters. In fact, i eems we will come very near hitting he whole community with "The Makng of a Successful Husband." The eature is illustrated by O. H. von lottschalck, manager of the American Press Association's art department. But the best yet is coming Saturday, April 20, when home finances will be the subject.

-Unfortunately there are many who eem to feel that what we all now eed is not a tonic but an anodyne. So estead of sending us to Carlyle they end us to the newest novels, not that we may be inspired and strengthened, but that we may be relaxed. T seemed to Duncombe that time stood still. Andrew's face, wholly disfigured by the hideous dark spectacles, unrecognizable, threatening, was within a few inches of his own. He felt his hot breath upon his | questions, not to answer them. You've cheek. "You lied to me, George. Why?" Duncombe did not answer. He could not. It was as though his body had been emptied of all breath.

"You meant to keep the contents of that telegram a secret from me. Why? Was I right, after all? Read me that telegram, George. Read it to me truthfully."

"The telegram is from Spencer," Duncombe said. "He is coming here." "Here? Is he giving up the search? Has he failed, then?"

"He does not say," Duncombe answered. "He says simply that he is here tonight.'

A discordant laugh broke from Pelham's lips.

"What about your Miss Fielding now?" he exclaimed. "Why do you ing." suppose that he is leaving Paris and coming here? I was right. I knew that I was right."

· Duncombe stood up. His expanse of shirt front was crumpled and battered. His white tie was hanging down in ribbons.

"Listen, Andrew!" he exclaimed. "I am speaking of the girl by whose side I sat tonight at dinner, who calls herself Miss Fielding, who has in plain words denied that she knows anything of Phyllis Poynton. I want you to understand this. Whatever she may choose to call herself that shall be her name. I will not have her questioned or bullied or watched. If Spencer comes here to do either. I have finished with him. I elect myself her protector. I will stand between her and all suspicion of evil things."

"She has found a champion indeed!" Pelham exclaimed fiercely. "With Miss Fielding I have nothing to do. Yet you had better understand this. If she be Phyllis Poynton she belongs to me and not to you. She was mine before you heard her name. I have watched her grow up from a child. I taught her to ride and to shoot and to swim. I have watched her listening to the wind, bending over the flowers in her garden. I have walked with her over the moor when the twilight fell and the mists rose. We have seen the kindling of the stars, and we have seen the moon grow pale and the eastern sky ablaze. I have taught her where to look for the beautiful things of life. She has belonged to me in all ways save one. I am a poor, helpless creature now. George, but by the gods, I will let no one rob me of my one holy compensation. She is the girl I love, the better part of myself."

"Phyllis Poynton may be all these things to you." Duncombe answered. "I do not know her. I do not recognize her. Find her if you can. Make of her what you will. All that I ask of you is that you divest your mind of these senseless suspicions. Seek Phyllis Poynton where you will, but leave alone the woman whom I love I will not have her troubled or an noyed by needless importunities. She says she is Miss Fielding. Then she is Miss Fielding. It is enough for me It must be enough for you!"

"And what about Spencer?" Pelham asked grimly.

"Spencer in this matter is my servant," Duncombe answered. "If his search for Phyllis Poynton entails his annoying Miss Fielding, then he is dismissed. I will have no more to do with the business."

"I have heard of this man Spencer." Andrew answered. "If you think that he is the sort of creature whom you can order about like that, I fancy that you are mistaken. You may try to call him off, if you like, but you won't succeed. He is searching for Phyllis Poynton, and he is coming here. I believe that he will find her." The windows were wide open, and both men suddenly turned round. There was no mistaking the sound which came to them from the road outside-the regular throb and beat of a perfectly balanced engine. Then they heard a man's voice, cool and precise.

"Here you are, then, and a sovereign for yourself. A capital little car this. Good night!"

The little iron gate opened and closed. A tall man in a loose traveling coat and carrying a small bag entered. He saw Duncombe standing at the open window and waved his hand. As should know then whether you were he approached his boyish face lit up telling me the truth."

claimed. "You got my telegram?" "An hour ago," Duncombe answered. "This is my friend, Mr. Andrew Pelham. What will you have?"

"Whisky and soda and a biscuit, please," was the prompt reply. "Have not upset you, I hope, coming down from the clouds in this fashion?"

"Not in the least," Duncombe answered. "You've made us very curious though."

"There is just one question," Pelham

"Shan't answer it-tonight," Spencer interrupted firmly. "I'm dead sleepy, and I couldn't guarantee to tell the truth. And when tomorrow comes-I'll be frank with you-I've very little to say. Pardon me, but where does Mr. Pelham come in in this matter?"

"Pelham." Duncombe said slowly. "was a neighbor of Miss Poynton's in coming here. He has wired for a mo- Devonshire. It was through him that tor to meet him at Lynn. He may be I first went to Paris to search for her.' Spencer nodded.

> "Glad to meet him, then," he reshall be glad to ask him in the morn-

"There is one," Pelham said, "which you must answer now." Spencer raised his eyebrows. He was standing with his back to them now, helping himself to sandwiches from a dish upon the sideboard. "By Jove, your cook does understand these things," he remarked, with his mouth full. "No idea I was so hungry. What was that, Mr. Pelham? A question which must be answered now?" "Yes. You telegraphed to Duncombe to know the names of Lord Runton's guests, and now you have come here yourself. Why?" Spencer helped himself to another

"I came here," he said, "because I didn't seem to be getting on in Paris. It struck me that the clew to Miss Poynton's disappearance might, after all, be on this side of the channel."

Pelham guided himself by the table to the sideboard. He stood close to

"Mr. Spencer," he said, "I am almost blind, and I cannot see your face, but I want you to tell me the truth. I expect it from you."

"My dear fellow," Spencer answered, "I'm awfully sorry for you, of course, but I really don't see why I should answer your questions at all, truthfully or untruthfully. I have been making a few inquiries for my friend Duncombe. At present I regret to say that I have been unsuccessful. In their present crude state I should prefer keeping my discoveries, such as they are, to my-

Pelham struck the sideboard with his clinched fist so that all the glasses rattled upon the tray. His face was dark

"I will not be ignored in this matter," he declared. "Phyllis Poyntonand her brother are nothing to Duncombe. He acted only for me. He cannot deny it. Ask him for yourself." "I do not need to ask him," Spencer answered. "I am perfectly well aware of the circumstances of the case. All the same, I go about my business my own way. I am not ready to answer questions from you or anybody else." "You shall tell me this at least," Pelham declared. "You shall tell me why you telegraphed here for the names of Lord Runton's house party." "Simplest thing in the world," Spencer answered, relinquishing his attack upon the sandwiches and lighting a cigarette. "I did it to oblige a friend who writes society notes for the New York Herald."

Duncombe gave vent to a little exclamation of triumph. Pelham for the moment was speechless.

"Awfully sorry if I misled you in any way," Spencer continued. "I never imagined your connecting my request with the disappearance of Phyllis Poynton. Why should I?"

"The fact is," Duncombe interposed, "there is a girl staying at Runton House whose voice Pelham declares is exactly like Phyllis Poynton's and whose general appearance, I will admit, is somewhat similar to the photograph I showed you. It is a coincidence, of course, but beyond that it is absurd to go. This young lady is a Miss Fielding. She is there with her father, and they are invited guests, with all the proper credentials."

Spencer nodded. "I suppose it is because I am not a ady's man." he said carelessly, I must admit that all girls' voices

"If I have misjudged you," Pelham said, with some dignity, "I am sorry. I am to understand, then, that you have no news whatever to give us about the disappearance of Phyllis Poynton and her brother?"

"Not a scrap," Spencer answered. "I will wish you both good night, then," Pelham said. "No, don't trouble, George. I can find my way quite well by myself."

He disappeared, and Duncombe drew a little sigh of relief.

"Excitable person, your friend!" Spencer remarked. Duncombe nodded.

"Very! I am frightened to death that he will make an ass of himself before Miss Fielding. If he hears her speak he loses his head."

"Nice girl?" Spencer asked. "Yes-very!"

"What sort of a fellow's the father?" "Very quiet. I've scarcely spoken to aim. They're Americans. Friends of Lord Runton's brother out in New York. Ever heard of them?"

"Yes, a few times." "You seem interested."

"I am-very."

Duncombe turned suddenly white. "What do you mean?" he asked. Spencer held his cigarette between his fingers and looked at it thought-

"Mr. Fielding of New York." he said. "sailed for America from Havre last Saturday. His daughter has gone to Russia with a party of friends."

Duncombe sprang from his seat. His cigarette slipped from his fingers and fell unheeded upon the carpet. "Then who-who are these people?" he exclaimed.

Spencer shrugged his shoulders. "I thought it worth while," he said, "to come over and find out."

The Important Question of Boarding or Keeping House - However Humble the Beginning of a Home, It Is Better Than the Most Attractive Boarding House. Je

Now Proceed Slowly.

All this talk about the economy of home life is tommyrot unless it refers entirely to indirect results, and it leads to wrong conclusions and many mistakes on the part of young married people. The youth is told that two can ive as cheaply as one-another old and figure that his income will answer very married, rents him a flat or a little ly hope you will not take it. house and settles down to save mone; and be happy. I know very well that it is in a great many cases, and the tendency to make it so seems to be growing, but it isn't right. Money is an important factor in domestic life, but beyond the necessities of existence it is not an essential. Properly used, it will help to make happiness, but at its best it is a mere auxiliary. Put it in single harness and depend upon it alone to draw you to bliss, and you will find that it will surely bolt at the first fork of the road and either upset the wagon or carry you farther and farther away from your goal. Something to Live For.

In a home each of you has something to live for, something that is a part of and inseparable from each other. There is something about the atmosphere that develops mutual ambition to which the surroundings of a boarding house are fatal. You feel your responsibilities, and your shoulders broaden to uphold them. Your mind expands under the same influence. You feel that you are a citizen, a factor in the affairs of the world. Nobody else will notice it, perhaps, but you can afford to look with supreme indifference upon the lack of attention of other people things to each other. They occupy a little world to themselves. What matters it what goes on outside? The rest of humanity constitutes a source of supply for bread and butter and some other desirable things, and for this reason if no other it should be treated with consideration, but otherwise it is not essential to domestic happiness. Much too often it is the cause of domestic failure. Go inside your little fort, close the doors and let the world wag as it will. You can't do that in a boarding house; you have to take the world in with you. Of course you have heard the saying that a wagging world on the outside is better than a wagging tongue on the inside, and in some cases. I regret to say, it is true, but the men who suffer from a woman's tongue are generally themselves to blame. TEDDY RODSEVELT, BOXER.

A New Toy Sold by Street Fakir Finds a Fast Market.

When the great whirlpool of pedestrians from Broadway and all of the side streets west of it in walking distance of City Hall square settled into the Chambers street channel toward Brooklyn bridge at sunset, says the New York Times, a street merchant of novelties lifted his strident voice and announced clearly, so that not a word was lost in the crash of traffic:

"Both men are in the ring. You will observe Teddy on the right. He is in splendid condition. And on the left you will see that Mike Donovan is prepared for the battle of his life."

The street merchant of this latest toy attraction held up a slab of green board upon which stood two figures of heavy papier mache. Both of the figures were of men stripped to the waist, their torsos bunched heavily with muscles. The faces were plainly drawn from photographs of President Roosevelt and Mike Donovan, who was once the trainer and boxing partner of James J. Corbett and other famous prize ring fighters and one time boxing companion to the president of the United States.

"Time!" called the fakir, and he wiggled his thumb and little finger, which were attached to rubber strings below. the green board.

Brooklynites stopped abruptly, and the flood of people around the corner from Broadway to the north became congested.

The fakir's thumb moved, and Mr. Donovan whirled his left arm rapidly, and Mr. Roosevelt drew back his chin with a seeming realization that Mr. Donovan intended to strike a blow.

"Soak 'im, Teddy!" called a Flatbush pater familias. "Give him the good night wallop!"

yelled another excitedly. Then the fakir twitched his little finger, and Mr. Roosevelt straightened out and whirled his left arm three times, his right twice, and then ducked his head and swatted the Hon. Mike

Donovan on the optic. A howl of delight went up from the Roosevelt admirers.

Mr. Donovan then came up, side stepped and in a clinch beat the Rooseveltian head. "Time!" called the fakir. "To yer corners, gents." The traffic policemen tried to stop the fight, but the man with the latest novelty observed the city ordinances by moving on a half inch.

"Second round!" he called. The second round found Roosevelt a bit groggy. Mr. Donovan swatted him with right and left. The suburbanites bought the novelty with recklessness at the close of the round, and the traffic policemen hustled them away.

The third round found Mr. Roosevelt knocking out Mr. Donovan's teeth, and there was more shelling out of silver. To a fat policeman the fakir observed:

"I guess you'd better call the wagon. I've got more dimes on me that I can ug away.

Athletes who were meat eaters vied. with those who were practically abstainers from flesh food, and in every case the abstainers won. Some of Yale's most successful athletes took part in the strength tests for meat eaters, and Professor Fisher declares they Patronize Quincy Stores were obliged to admit their inferiority in strength. Professor Fisher says in the Yale Medical Journal:

"The first comparison (for arm holding) shows a great superiority on the side of the flesh abstainers. Only two of the fifteen flesh eaters succeeded in holding their arms out over a quarter of an hour, whereas twenty-two of the thirty-two abstainers surpassed that limit. None of the flesh eaters reached half an hour, but fifteen of the thirtytwo abstainers exceeded that limit. Of these nine exceeded an hour, four exceeded two hours, and one exceeded three hours.

"In respect to deep knee bending, if we take the number 325 for reference, we find that of the nine flesh eaters only three surpassed this figure, while of the twenty-one abstainers seventeen surpassed it. Only one of the nine flesh eaters reached 1,000 as against six of the twenty-one abstainers. None of the former surpassed 2,000 as against two of the latter.

"In general it may be said that whatever the explanation there is strong evidence that a low proteid, nonflesh, or nearly nonflesh, dietary is conducive to endurance."

Homeric City Discovered.

The approuncement that Wilhelm Dorpfeld, head of the German archaeological institute at Athens, has discovered in the island of Ithaca what he believes to be the remains of a Homeric city has greatly interested archaeologists. Remnants of the walls and of monochrome decorated earthenware, as well as a number of more elaborately ornamented vases, have been discovered. Some distance from the ruins of the city was found a cavern containing evidences of prebistoric inhabitants. Under the Conven? of St. John Herr Dorpfeld found a temple with Doric and Ionic columns.

New York, April 13 .- Hopelessly divided-seven for a verdict of guilty of murder in the first degree and five for acquittal on the ground of insanitythe jury which since Jan. 23 has been trying Harry K. The twelve men were promptly discharged by Justice Fitzgerald, who declared that he, too, believed their task the Tombs without bail to await a second trial on the charge of having murdered Stanford White, the architect.

When this new trial will take place no one connected with the case can express an opinion. District Attorney Jerome declares that there are many other persons accused of homicide awaiting trial and Thaw will have to take his turn with the rest. Thaw's attorneys will have a conference today with the prisoner to decide upon their next step. They may make an early aphim in the city prison, for his case on the already crowded criminal calendar cannot possibly be reached until some time next fall.

The courtroom itself was half empty. Only the newspaper men, the court attaches and a few favored friends were allowed to enter to hear the verdict. Justice Fitzgerald feared a demonstration of some sort should the general public be admitted, and he gave strict orders against this.

Attorney Delmas, who conducted Thaw's case in court, and who, in making his summing up address to the jury appealed almost directly to the "unwritten law," or "dementia Ameri cana," as he termed it, was not in court when the jury was discharged.

Clifford W. Attorneys O'Reilly, Hartridge, Peabody and Gleason acted for Thaw yesterday. It was said that O'Reilly would have a leading part in the fature conduct of affairs.

UPON EVIDENCE ALONE

"Unwritten Law" Was Not Considered in the Jury Room

The story of the proceedings in the jury room far outranked in interest the brief court proceedings which brought was hopeless. Thaw was remanded to the famous trial to a close. It developed that the jury had considered everything connected with the case except "the unwritten law." Basing their judgment entirely upon the evi dence, they voted either for or against murder in the first degree when they cast their first ballots. The first vote was eight to four in favor of conviction.

THE KILLING OF WHITE Climax of Downward Career of

a Great Spendthritt

Harry K. Thaw first came into public notice as a confirmed victim of the cigaret habit. He is the only man, so far as is known, who ever made a trip to Europe just to lay in a supply of his favorite cigarets

William Thaw, father of Harry, was a Pittsburg man who had made his own way in the world. He had worked up from poverty to affluence. In railroad and other investments he had be come a millionaire. He died when Harry was a boy, leaving a fortune of $40,000,000. The income from the portion which Harry Thaw would inherit would be $80,000 a year ($219 a day) and the father stipulated in his will that Harry should have only $2400 a year until, in the judgment of the rest of the family, he might be considered capable of handling properly the income of his full share of the estate.

The boy's mother, however, and his brothers and sisters took pity on him 1 and permitted him to have his full income. From that moment the swift speed of Harry K. Thaw on the incline plane began. He went down like a to-

On the stage the chorus girls and a soubrette were singing a song from "Mamzelle Champagne.

Harry Thaw and his wife were also in the roof garden. Thaw was watching White rather than the stage. Suddenly he arose, walked over to where the architect sat, drew a revolver and fired three shots point blank at White who slipped to the floor dead.

Then Thaw made one brief exclamaion. It was "He ruined my wife." Thaw was arrested at once and taken to the Tombs prison. There he was placed in a cell in "murderers' row" to iwaft trial upon an indictment charging him with murder in the first degree. According to stories which were cirulated at the time and for months thereafter, Thaw proposed to rely upon the "unwritten law" to save himself from the electric chair. His friends caused the publication of the most startlingly sensational tales concerning relations of Stanford White with Evelyn Thaw. Very much of maudlin sympathy for Thaw was expressed. Condemnation of White was general turned. Friends of the slain architect came to the rescue of his reputation. So Harry Thaw sat in his cell and waited. When first locked up he had $150 in his pockets. In a few days he had exhausted that in tips to the prison attaches and was flat broke. But there was more cash left where that came from, and the prisoner was soon supplied with spending money. Even in prison he must be a spender.

Thaw's meals were sent to him piping hot from a fashionable and costly cafe uptown. Cigarets, of course, were easily purchased. A trip to Europe after the favorite brand, however, was not

The prisoner's friends and relatives sought to prevail upon him to let his counsel plead insanity as the defense, but to all such entreaties Thaw was deaf. He insisted that the killing of White was justified upon other grounds and determined to submit his case to a jury on that line. However, when the trial opened hereditary insanity was advanced as a defense.

But Thaw had engaged as his leading counsel Delphin M. Delmas of San Francisco, a lawyer who had defended a dozen or more men charged with murder, acquitting all of them, it is said, on the "unwritten law" defense. This means that he had presented to the jury such a case as to convince the 12 men that the killing was justifiable homicide because of the relations of the slain man with the wife of the pris-

In any event, it was conceded that under this line of defense it would be necessary for Thaw's wife to be subjected to the humiliation of a public proof of the truth of the allegations regarding her relations with Stanford

In opening for the defense, however Attorney Gleason declared that Thaw did not rely upon the "unwritten law" to acquit him. Gleason urged that there was a taint of insanity upon both the male and female sides of the house

Missouri State University Adds a Poultry Department.

CHAIR OF CHICKENS,

FULL COURSE OF FOWL STUDY

The Hen Officially Honored at Last In Her Own Country-Several East. ern Colleges Already Give Instruction In This Branch of Science.

Out of the $87,000 that has just been appropriated by the legislature for the maintenance of the Missouri Agricultural college $15,000 will be utilized in establishing a poultry department, and this subject will be taught in the future along with the other branches of agricultural science that have a place in the curriculum of the institution, says the St. Louis Republic.

The department will be made one of the features of the Agricultural col lege and given the prominence that the importance of the poultry industry in Missouri warrants.

The course has practically been determined upon, and instruction in the department will begin with the opening of the Missouri university next fall.

The above amount of $15,000 will be used to erect the necessary buildings on the agricultural farm, purchasing equipments and fitting up the grounds All standard varieties of poultry will be raised at the farm, and experiments to determine the relative values will be carried on continually.

The establishment of the department will be of great value to the farmers and poultry raisers of the state, carried on as it is contemplated by the authorities of the Agricultural college.

This department is one of the most important at Cornell university and at both the Rhode Island and Maine Agricultural colleges. Many students go from different parts of the country to take the special poultry course offered at these institutions. It is proposed to furnish these opportunities at the Agthe state university at Columbia, Mo., for the students of the west.

The returns from the poultry industry of Missouri amounted last year to over $70,000,000, more than the combined wheat and oat crops and greater than the value of either the fruit or the dairy product of the state. Both of these industries receive much attention from the Agricultural college.

The horticultural department has been established since the founding of the Agricultural college, and the dairy department was established about five years ago, soon after the dairy interests of Missouri began to be of such great value.

The enormous increase in the poultry output and the growing interest in the poultry business led the authorities some time back to plan the establishment of the department in question, but lack of means has prevented until the recent appropriation bill passed the legislature,

EFFECTS OF BAD COOKING.

First Alcoholism, Then Consumption, Says Dr. Huber of New York.

Talking about tuberculosis to the Woman's Municipal league, Dr. J. B. Huber traced a large part of the disease back through alcoholism to bad cooking, says the New York Tribune "Among men," said Dr. Huber, "half the cases of tuberculosis are the result of alcoholism. So well is this fact rec ognized among French doctors that they say consumption is contracted 'across the zine,' their bars being covered with zinc. And about the causes of alcoholism I have ideas different from those commonly entertained perhaps. A man is not necessarily vicious because he drinks. I was called into a saloon early one morning to attend a patient and found a long line of men waiting to get their drinks. I though it strange that so many men should be so anxious to drink before breakfast that they had to wait their turn to be served. Since then I have had opportunities to make many similar observations, and I now see that it is not strange that these men should want to drink. The cooking in their homes is so vile that these poor, wretched fellows have to drink. They are so exhausted with the battle of life that they have to do something, however foolish, however mistaken, to keep up their bodies for fresh exertion. Thus they create a predisposition to tuber-"Most consumptives are very poor,

A Mixup at Home.

A young married woman walked into a grocer's shop, angry to the very roots of her hair, and banged a piece of yellow substance on the counter.

"Here," she said, "is the soap that does the washing of itself: the soap that makes every washing day a glorified feast; the soap that makes the linen white as snow and lets the delighted housewife play with the children while the clothes wash themselves,

Seneca on Endurance.

There can be no easy proof of virtue. Fortune lashes and mangles us. Well, let us endure it. It is not cruelty. It is a struggle, in which the oftener we engage the braver we shall become. The strongest part of the body is that which is exercised by the most frequent use. We must intrust ourselves to fortune to be hardened by her against herself. By degrees she will make us a match for herself. Familit. Thus the bodies of sailors are hardened by endurance of the sea, and the hands of farmers by work; the arms of soldiers are powerful to hurl darts; the legs of runners are active. That part of each man which he exercises is the strongest. So by endurance the mind becomes able to despise the power of

Just after King Edward's coronation, when he underwent an operation for appendicitis and was lying convalescent, he sent for his grandchildren.

The little ones trooped into the room, cautioned by their nurse that they must keep very quiet, and stood about their grandfather's bed. He talked with them for a few minutes, and they replied in awed whispers. Then, when the nurse told them they must go, Prince Eddie said:

Albany, April 13 .- Governor Hughes most radical and sweeping step became known here when Assemblyman Moreand introduced a bill giving the governor the power to investigate all state departments. There had been advance talk of such a measure, but after a talk with the governor Moreland amended the measure, which merely gave the governor the power to employ special counsel to investigate, by giving the governor personally this power.

This is in plain terms authorizing the governor to apply to all state employes the test which ruined Kelsey. No such drastic piece of legislation has been known here in recent years. The text of the Moreland bill indicates its r 10 09 abcdef 10 32 10 50 ihgfedcba 11 19 significance. In his memorandum he says: "The most serious matter is the charge of extravagance in administration and this charge has been abundantly proven." This indicates what is coming in the other investigations.

The governor also announced the discharge of Captain Louis Wendel of the National Guard, who had been court martialled on the charge of grafting. but who had declined to stand trial The court martial found him guilty and the governor approved the charge.

We Eat Too Much. Medical science declares that practitally seven-eighths of our ills are due to overfeeding. Colds in the head are often due to eating too much. It may be claimed that our own well spread boards are meager compared to those of our ancestors. Probably, but our ancestors were hardy and able to throw off the effects of a hearty meal. We do not take into consideration the great difference between their life and ours. As it is, we eat altogether too -Philadelphia Inquirer.

Holding the unquestioned position as the leading English dramatist, Arthur W. Pinero's plays, with tew exceptions, have been retained Mrs. Edmund S. To see "The Second Mrs. Tanqueray," for instance, there has hitherto been no opportunity here in Boston, except at high prices. "The Second Mrs. Tanqueray" is a strong motional drama of great power and significant character drawing; it's four acts revealing certain phrases of modern English life that are typically romantic and enthrallingly dramatic. It's scenes are laid in London and thereabouts, and at the Castle Square they will be scenically reproduced in realistic and artistic fashion.

Teamster Killed as Result of Dispute Over Strike

MANY CLASHES AT BOSTON

Shots Fired at Crowd From Building Occupied by Strike Breakers--Youth Hit and Dangerously Wounded

Boston, April 15 .- An argument over the teamsters' strike resulted in a murder, the victim being John Higgins, 25 years old, who was stabbed in the neck by a cotton hook and died on the way to a hospital. The police charge Robert B. Clark, 45 years old, a negro, with the crime. Clark is under arrest.

Higgins and Clark were both team drivers, the former being a union man, while the latter is not a member of a union. Both had been working near each other and were familiar with the condition of the strike now in progress this city reported to the police Sunday, but only one case was of a serious nature. John J. Gaffney, 23 years old, of New York was arrested at the strike breakers headquarters on Albany street, charged with shooting Spiros Prisnos, aged 19. Prisnos is said to have been standing in a doorway across the street from the strike breakers' headquarters watching e crowd of men, some of whom were hurling sticks and other missiles at th windows. Three or four shots are said to have been fired from the building but only one took effect. That one hi Prisnos in the mouth, causing a dangerous wound, though it is believed the injury will not prove fatal.

The police made a rush for a room oc cupied by strike breakers and arrested Gaffney, one of the inmates, as the man who did the shooting. Prisnos was taken to a hospital.

Earlier in the day three or four strike breakers were followed by a crowd in South Boston and missiles were hurled at them. One of the men, James King of New York, was hit on the head, suffering a severe scalp wound. He was taken to a hospital

As the result of an investigation yes terday afternoon of the headquarters of the strike breakers at 161 Albany street, Councilman Noonan of ward 1: will introduce an order in the common council at this week's meeting, which, f passed, will result in the ousting of the strike breakers from their present building. He will ask that the building commissioners investigate the conditions, and he claims that the prevailing mode of living at "Fort Bradley" is against all laws, and that the building Office, No. 19 Temple Street, Quincy, Mass. laws relative to fire escapes are grossly violated.

Noonan, accompanied by a friend was denied admittance to the place by the alleged leader of the strike breakers Pat Bradley, who refused to recognize the councilman's badge. He told the latter that he would have to get some authority from the police.

Noonan went to station 4 and Sergeants Varley and Hall escorted the councilman back to the building. Again Bradley refused to let him in, but the officers finally secured admission for

A CHORAL SERVICE

Prelude to the Arbitration and Peace Congress

CLERGYMEN GIVE VIEWS

Benefits of War Are Uncertain, While Evils Are Immediate-Cannot Be Abolished, but Might be Greatly Mitigated

New York, April 15 .- A choral service, a fitting prelude to the first national arbitration and peace congress thing, the promoters of the peace move ment must have been gratified.

Andrew Carnegie was expected to preside, but returning from Pittsburg on a delayed train he failed to reach the hall until the meeting was well under way and then once inside the place he was unable to make his way through the throng to the platform, and contented himself with a place in a box. In his absence Bishop Potter presided

After several selections by the Oratorio society, accompanied by a full orchestra, the great audience rose and sang a hymn written by D. C. Roberts. It had been expected that a peace message from President Roosevelt would be read, but no mention of the message

Archbishop Farley, who was to have been one of the speakers, was detained at Washington and his prepared address was read by Mgr. Lavelle of St.

Archbishop Farley, writing on "Universal Peace," said that he was not pre pared to say that war could ever be re moved from society, but that much might be done to mitigate its horror and lessen its frequency. Efforts for universal peace, he declared, would ac complish only imperfect results until the moral power and authority of organ wed religion were openly recognized The archbishop said no horror, mora or material, was lacking to war, and uncertain; its evils are immédiate, in evitable and universal-vitiation o human character, waste of life and gain, arrest of human progress, injuice to the helpless and innocent, popu lar and permanent legacies of hate, and all the fiercest and most ruinous pas sions of the human breast. Its genuin symbol is the storm that blots out in a brief space the harvest, the home, even life itself, leaving behind its desolation, despair and death.

"We must all admit that even if we cannot totally abolish war, much can should be grateful to all who have in of its barbarian character, and emphasize the diguity and rights of man, even Bishop Potter said: "I had the pleasure, af I can describe it that way, in stening to a divine today of my own denomination, who spoke on the spirit of war and declared that our meeting was characterized by sentimentalism. I hope it is not that; I hope the time has come when nations will no longer learn the art of war. was characterized by sentimentalism.

"Have you realized what men have done in mechanics for adding to the horrors of war? Father Lavelle was just telling of an invention that is designed to kill 250,000 men in 15 minules. Do you realize what that means? I had two brothers in the late Civil war, so that I do not underrate war.

"War makes unproducers. It has made about one million non-producers in Germany. God forbid that we should drive the cruiser and the battle ship from the horizon, but they cannot accomplish the arbitration that brough peace to Chile and Argentine, involving 80.000 acres of land. Let us thank God for The Hague congress, and that ar American has built the building in which it is to meet, and may it haster the triumph of universal peace." Rabbi Hirsch also made an address

Tainted Money Discussed by Bryan Washington, April 15 .- W. J. Bryan addressed nearly 2000 persons here under the auspices of the Y. M. C. A. and took for his subject "The Prince o Peace." He concluded with praise for the colleges and churches that have de clined to accept money from wealthy men "who have gained their riches by dishonest methods." He regarded it as the best evidence of the growth of a moral sentiment in this country.

Death From Hot Coals and Steam Key West, Fla., April 15 .- An explo sion which occurred on the dredger George W. Allen at Key West caused the death of two men. A tube in the boiler is said to have burst, the escaping steam blowing open the furnace doors and throwing live coals and steam on the two men who were killed.

UNCLE SAM AFTER COOKS.

But They Mustn't Have Dyspepsia

Uncle Sam has asked for ten expert cooks, who must be healthy and have good eyesight, to cook for his Indians and his soldiers at western osts and reservations, says the Philadelphia North American. Twenty-five young women of Philadelphia, who ave all the exacting requirements filed applications for the positions recently at the United States civil serv e commission. Despite the alleged ndependence of the American cool the is supposed to dictate instead of bey, the applicants answered the fol owing questions: "Are you subject to loss of conscious

"Are you subject to dizziness?" "What are your past and prese nabits in the use of alcohol?"

"Do you use opium, morphine or an ther drug?"

"Have you ever had any deformity? No cook under twenty years old will e considered, as the government beeves women under that age have not ad sufficient experience to prepar od properly.

The cooks are wanted for posts a Rapid City, S. D.; agricultural school, North Dakota: Zuni, N. M.; Ponca, Okla.: Fort Bidwell, Cal., and other posts. Their pay will range from $480 to $540 a year and include board. Nothing is said of a day out in the ap nights when the cook may entertain her friends.

HEARING AT ONCE

Motion Filed by Counsel For Eddy Trustee Defense

AN UNEXPECTED COURSE

Effort to Determine Validity of Trust Deed Given by Christian science Leader--Plaintiffs' Good Faith Is Doubted

Concord, N. H., April 16,-Counsel for the defense in the suit brought by George W. Glover and other "next friends" of Mrs. Mary Baker Eddy against Christian Science officials to compel the latter to give an accounting of Mrs. Eddy's estate took an unexpected course yesterday by filing a motion for an immediate hearing.

The motion, which was filed with the clerk of the Merrimack county superior court, asks that the "next friends" be ordered to show cause why the action of the trustees, recently appointed to care for Mrs. Eddy's estate for leave to intervene as plaintiffs, should not be granted, and that if Mrs. Eddy's rela tives have objections they make them known at once. The defendants ask for an immediate hearing, so that the validity of the trust deed given by Mrs. Eddy since the bringing of the original suit may be determined.

Later in the day the three trustee of Mrs. Eddy's property, Henry M. Baker of Bow, Archibald McLellan of Boston and Josiah E. Fernald of Concord, filed an answer to the supple mental bill filed on April 6 by George W. Glover, Mary Baker Glover, George W. Baker, Fred W. Baker and Ebenezer J. F. Eddy, the "next friends" of Mrs. Eddy.

The trustees reserve the right to object to the maintenance of the proceedings instituted by the "next friends." Among other reservations, they retain the right to apply to the court at any stage of the litigation to determine whether the proceedings instituted by the "next friends" were brought in good faith and not instigated by enemies of Mrs. Eddy.

The answer denies that the original defendants induced Mrs. Eddy to turn over her property to the trustees, or that the trustees are or have been agents of the original defendants. The trustees aver that to their knowledge no combination of persons has existed for the purpose of secluding Mrs. Eddy and deny the allegations that she was not competent to execute the deed of trust. The trustees state that it is their duty, if the charges in the bill of the "next friends" are true, to prosecute the 10 defendants for the recovery of all money and property, if any, misappropriated or discerted from Mrs. Eddy's estate as alleget.

It is expected that the court will hold both sides for the purpose of fixing a date for an early hearing. Train Wreck Kills Five Persons

St. Paul. April 16.—Running at speed of 40 miles an hour on a straight track, a passenger train which left here for Pacific coast points was detailed at Bartlett, N. D. Five persons were killed and a score or more injured, some of them seriously. After the wreck the train took fire, seven passenger coaches being destroyed. Officials of the road are unable to account for the wreck on any other theory than that it was a deliberate attempt to wreck the train.

McGill University's Great Loss Montreal, April 16.—The medical building, one of the largest of the group comprising McGill university, was burned to the ground this morning The loss is estimated at $500,000, but the equipment of this department of the years of labor and the loss to the institu tion is much greater than indicated by the figures. Steamship Officers Want More Pay New York, April 16.- Demands have been made for increased wages for the officers on all the coastwise steamship companies in this city and Baltimore. A marvelous change had taken place in the weather since the previous day. The calm splendor of the early au tumn seemed to have vanished. strong north wind was blowing, and the sky was everywhere gray and threatening. New York, April 16.—That fewer young and untrained men and more men of strength and character be sent into the Far East as missionaries was the main point made by William J. Bryan, in an address before the Foreign Mission Roard of the Presbyterian church here "I visited a chain of colleges and schools established in the east by American money," he said, "and, while the United States may not be able to boast that the sun never sets on her possessions, she has a prouder boast, that the sun never sets on American philanthropy."

The third annual circus of the Y an enjoyable time for the small boy and adults. All the members have been enthusiastic over it for weeks and have cooperated to make it a

The street parade of Tuesday after noon gave some indication of the conderful attractions, but it took a near view to appreciate.

The doors for the side show in As ociation hall opened at 7.30 and for n hour hundreds viewed the freaks nd were entertained by the Rubes, Hoboes, Policemen and others who made things lively

Among the freaks were: A giant attoed man, an X ray show, monkeys, l'eddy bears, a living skeleton, Tom Thumb and wife, a jumbo elephant, old bruin, an educated frog, the Siamese twins, and a snake charmer. Claude E. Patch was chairman of the side show committee.

The Hardly Able Band headed the grand pageant which opened the main show held in the gymnasium at 8.30 Many of the attractions of the side show, and other features were in line The band was no worse than some circus bands, but on the whole a lively aggregation of musicians? who per formed their parts well. Newman Savage was chairman of the music

Delcevare King was the ring-master and a master of the art. His most he clowns in their place and out of danger. These clowns,-Messrs. Tirrell, Wilson, McClay, Jones, Thomas, Rideout and Tarbox-made things great stunts.

Aside from the grotesque side, how ever, there were several very good acts the parallel bars, tumbling, in the the Herald. pyramids, and in the grand finale, where they leaped and dived over the elephant.

The fencers and the Bill brothers were not present, but some Harvard fencers are expected tonight. Perhaps the best act of Tuesday evening wa y Wallace Bennett and his partner from Harvard in tumbling. Mr. Ben-TUESDAY and WEDNESDAY nett also did some very clever club swinging. The Teddy Bears were also an attraction.

Russell Tupper was chairman of the committee on main show; who found an active assistant in Physical Director Long and J. Gilbert Miller, the general overseer. Charles Hull and Albert Prescott the committee on refreshments, were assisted by several peanut boys who did a great business.

Growth of Turbine.

During the fiscal year which ended an. 31, 1907, the General Electric Company sold 283 turbines, with an aggregate capacity of 274,460 kilowatts, or about 969 kilowatts per unit. The General Electric Company has now received orders for or installed a total of over 850 Curtis steam turbines, with a total capacity of 799,000 kilowa ts.

The number of turbines ordered in the last fiscal year was slightly less than the year before, but the size of the kilowatt capacity is more than in 50,-000 kilowatts greater than 1905-06.

Rich Man Who So Appreciated the zine and asbestos under the range Advantages That Poor Man Did Not Suffer- Democratic Principles Not Bryanism

New York, April 17 .- With W. J. Bryan as the chief attraction, the De mocracy of Brooklyn last night, in ob perving the anniversary of the birth o Thomas Jefferson, engaged in a Democratic reunion and demonstration. The function was the annual dinner of the Brooklyn Democratic club. A call to prominent Democrats in many states was included in the arrangements for the celebration and the presence of many of these lent peculiar interest to the dinner.

Foremost was Mr. Bryan, who, con cluding a day of vigorous action, which embraced four public addresses, was given a splendid-reception and who deivered a characteristic discourse. Bryan attended the early courses of the dinner and then hurried away to give two lectures in other parts of Brooklyn. to return later in the evening as the last speaker at the post-prandial exer-

It was nearly midnight before Bryan tarted on his address. When he arose he was accorded a tremendous ovation Bryan said his only desire was that the Democratic party should enter the next campaign with the strongest Democratic strength it could find in order to bring out a triumphant vote. It was not necessary for him, he thought, to be of their accomplished daughter. A a candidate for any office, as there was joy enough for him in private life, provided he could get his ideas put into

Mr. Bryan declared he wanted to give encouragement to the cause, and he omparing the lives and works of Thomas Jefferson and Alexander Hamiton. Jefferson, who knew man's weakness and man's strength, and who believed in trusting the people, and Hamilton, who advocated the theory of removing the government as far as pos sible from the people's reach. Bryan expressed the opinion that the rich men of today do not sympathize enoug with the poor men, and that the trouble was that people do not have money at that the money has the people. He wished to present Jefferson to the rich vantages that money gave him that he the poor man's money and put it in his own pocket. Mr. Bryan appeared to be at his best in his address, and his oratory often brought his hearers to their feet with exclamations of approval and shouts of applause, more especially when he enunciated the words:

"If you do not believe in the right of Democratic people to govern themselves, I will drive you out of the Democratic party," and then he added: "If the Democratic party does not believe in the rule of the people, it will have no trouble in driving me out."

Mr. Bryan, as the hour grew late, wished to conclude, but under many requests to continue and some cries of 'speak all night," was induced to go on. He referred to the fact that many people have termed certain Democratic principles as Bryanism and declared that they were not Bryanism, but had lived before he was born and would live after he had passed away. He said:

"Now, because the things for which Bryanism has stood have had the support of a Republican reformer, they cannot take from me any of the credit. In conclusion Bryan declared that i was perfectly proper and perfectly reasonable for the Democrats to praise the Republicans for incorporating into the platforms Democratic principles He urged all present to work stead fastly for a unified party and for faithful adherence to the principles of Democracy laid down by Thomas Jeffer

The Wollaston Glee Club Present Fine Programme

Each year the annual concerts of the Wollaston Glee Club seem to improve and the large audience at the Wollastor Congregational church Wednesday evenng was enthusiastic over the spring concert of 1907. Mr. John A. Crowley continues as the conductor and is both efficient and popular.

MAYORS AT A BANQUET Tell of Advantages Possessed by Their Bailiwicks

Boston, April 18.—Six Massachusetts mayors boomed their own municipalities as manufacturing and industrial centres at the spring banquet of the Boot and Shoe club at Hotel Brunswick last night. The cities represented by their chief magistrates were Boston, Worcester, Lynn, Brockton, Marlboro and Woburn.

Mayor Fitzgerald exploited Boston as a manufacturing city, dwelling particularly upon the tide water advantages. Mayor Duggan gave a number of interesting statistics regarding Worcester, claiming for it a population of 188,000, an increase of 30,000 in 10 years. He said that there were 1100 industries in the city, employing 26,000 workmen with an annual output of $54.

Mayor Barney spoke of Lynn as the hundred million dollar city, while Mayor Kent reviewed the growth of the shoe industry in Brockton. The advantages of Mar!boro as a shoe center were described by Mayor Brown of that city, who spoke particularly on the railroad and electric street car facilities. The last speaker was Mayor Blodgett of Woburn, who referred to the tanning industries of that city.

Library Notes.

All books when returned to the belicensed by the Inspector in accordance with mas Crane Public Library must be returned at the desk and nowhere else. They must not be left upon the tables, neither is it sufficient to return them to the bookcases in the reading room. The reason for this is obvious. Until the obligation is cancelled by the stamp ipon the card at the delivery desk, that of the city.' book is still charged to the person in whose name it was issued. No little trouble has been caused the past few weeks by children putting their books back into their bookcase. Some people, we regret to say, when a fine has been incurred, seem to think that by returning the book in some irregular manner like the above instead of the straight forward one, the obligation is cancelled, or at least, nobody knows anything about it. They should not so delude themselves, for sooner or ater the sly dodge is discovered sometimes before and sometimes after a noice has been sent that the book is overdue. It is always best to return the book to the desk whether prepared to pay the fine or not, saving a great deal of trouble both for themselves and other people, including the attendants at

When the terrified teachers counted their charges and found that 70 were missing, they improvised rope ladders and ascended to where they believed they would find the mangled bodies o the missing pupils. Their surprise and joy were unbounded when they reached the highest point of the ruins and found the terrified children clinging to beams and rafters. Not one was injured. The roof, in falling, rested on the beams so that a space was left over the place where the little ones had sought refuge The children were safely conveyed t the ground.

At Tixtla eight dead and 40 injured are reported; at Ayutla nine dead and about 50 injured

In Huamixtian the cathedral fell and the government offices and the officia schools are in ruins. The rest of the houses are damaged.

At Techan and Tlapa nearly all the houses fell in, but nobody was hurt. A careful survey of Mexico City shows that the damage sustained wa heavier than at first supposed. In som instances buildings were so severely shaken in the foundations that it has Opening chapter in Daily Ledge of Saturday, March 16. To be coutinued daily.

Duncombe, who had returned from the park by the fields, was crossing the road to enter his own gates when a black speck far away on the top of the hill attracted his attention. He stood still gazing at it and was instantly aware that it was approaching him at an almost incredible speed. It gathered shape swiftly, and he watched it with a fascination which kept him rooted to the spot. Above the wind he could hear the throbbing of its engines. He saw it round a slight curve in the road with two wheels in the air and a skid which seemed for a moment as though it must mean destruction. Mud and small stones flew up around it. The driver was crouching forward over the wheel, tense and motionless. Duncombe moved to the side of the road to let it pass with a little exclamation of anger.

Then it came more clearly into sight and he forgot his anger in his amazement. The seat next the driver was occupied by a man leaning far back whose face was like the face of the dead. Behind was a solitary passener. She was leaning over as though trying to speak to her companion. Her hair streamed wild in the wind, and on her face was a look of blank and fearful terror. Duncombe half moved forward. She saw him and touched the driver's arm. His hand seemed to fly to the side of the car, and his right foot was jammed down. With grinding of brakes and the screaming of locked wheels the car was brought to a standstill within a few feet of him. He sprang eagerly forward. She was already upon her feet in the road.

"Sir George," she said, "your warning, as you see, was barely in time. We are adventurer and adventuressdetected. I suppose you are a magistrate. Don't you think you ought to detain us?"

"What can I do to help you?" he asked simply.

She looked at him eagerly. There were mud spots all up her gown, even upon her face. Her hair was wildly disordered. She carried her hat in her hand.

"You mean it?" she cried. "You know that I do!"

She turned and looked up the road along which they had come. There was no soul in sight. She looked even up at the long line of windows which frowned down upon them from the back to the hall. They, too, were empty. She thrust a long envelope suddenly into his hand.

"Guard this for me," she whispered. "Don't let any one know that you have it. Don't speak of it to any one. Keep it until I can send for it."

He thrust it into his inner pocket and buttoned his coat. "It is quite safe," he said simply.

Her eyes flashed her gratitude upon him. For the first time he saw some thing in her face, heard it in her tone. which made his heart beat. After all she was human.

"You are very good to me," she murmured. "Believe me, I am not quite so bad as I seem. Goodby."

He turned with her toward the car, and she gave a low cry. He, too, started. The car was a mile away, tearing up a hill and almost out of sight. In the lane behind they could hear the sound of galloping horses. He caught her by the wrist, dragged her through the gate and behind a great shrub on the lawn.

"Stay there!" he exclaimed hoarsely "Don't move. I will come back." Half a dozen horsemen were coming along the lane at steeplechase pace Lord Runton, on his wonderful black horse, which no man before had ever seen him gallop save across the softest of country, pulled up outside the gate. "Seen a motor go by, Duncombe?" he called out. Duncombe nodded.

"Rather!" he answered. "Fielding and Miss Fielding in it. Going like mad!"

Runton waved his companions on and leaned down to Duncombe.

"Beastly unpleasant thing happened, Duncombe," he said. "Fielding and his daughter have bolted. Fielding seems to have half killed a messenger who came down from London to see De Rothe and stolen some papers. Fact of the matter is he's not Fielding at all, and as for the girl-Lord knows who she is! Sorry for you, Duncombe. Hope you weren't very hard hit."

He gathered up his reins. "We've sent telegrams everywhere." he said. "but the beast has cut the telephone, and De Rothe blasphemes if we talk about the police. It's a queer business. He rode off. Duncombe returned where the girl was standing. She was clutching at the branches of the shrub as though prostrate with fear, but at his return she straightened herself. How much had she heard, he won-

From a Business View.

If you were going into business with another man as your partner, each havng the same interest, it is probable that you would divide the duties of management so as to give each a cerrain definite responsibility. One of you perhaps would have charge of the finances and accounting, the other of the buying and selling. Each in his respective sphere would be supreme, but be held in bulk, reinvested for your a good scheme nevertheless and vastly joint interest or equally divided, as you might individually elect.

With proper modification the very same system may be applied to the domestic partnership, the husband holding the position of senior, the wife that of junior partner. The husband's department is his business; the wife's is the home. The one produces revenue

A memorandum book should be kept with the money, and all withdraw als should be properly noted. The advantage of this system is its simplicity. Its disadvantages arise from the dan gers of loss by theft or otherwise and from the fact that it lessens the individual responsibility and the stimulus to individual saving when compared superior to the mendicant or allowance

Don't Enslave Yourself.

I never believed in the plan of giving all one's salary to one's wife any more than I believe it right for the husband to keep all of it himself. In the first place, it throws upon her a burden that properly belongs to him, in part at east, and, in the second place, it makes t necessary for him to ask her for what he needs, and too often he may be required to explain his needs in detail before he gets it. Some men are so weak that they need restraint of this kind, and for such this method is commendable, but for a man with average backbone it's humiliating to have to ask his wife for money even if he has voluntarily placed himself in durance. It reverses the position of mendicancy and is harder on a man than a woman, because in her case it has the sanction of the ages. I believe in woman's inversing the traditional relations of the sexes. It is possible to give your wife freedom without enslaving yourself, and a certain amount of starch in your spinal column is just as important under the conditions I have suggested as in any other situation, domestic or otherwise. I know a man whose wife allows him barely enough to pay car fare, and when PLEASE GIVE he wants more

He might have taken adat the same time preserved his self respect if he had reserved to himself personal expenses and a margin for the unexpected. Now, my boy, just one more word before I toddle off to bed. Consider your wife as your equal-in every respect. She may not be in some, but she is entitled to the consideration. Consult her about your affairs, tell her your troubles that are worth telling at all and take no liberties yourself you are not willing to grant her. And now, with love to your dear girl, much for yourself, I will bid you good night. Affectionately, JOHN SNEED.

At Least Twenty Million People In Dire Distress

IMMEDIATE AID NEEDED

Their All, but Have Sold Themselves and Their Work--Serious Epidemics of Disease

London, April 20 .- Writing from the Russian famine district, Dr. Kennard, who was sent by the Society of Friends to investigate conditions among the peasantry, draws an appalling picture of the suffering. After calling attention to the urgent and immediate need of funds, he says:

"This is the worst famine Russia has known. No less than 20,000,000 people distributed throughout the southeastern provinces cannot live without aid to see another harvest. The date of the harvest will vary with the latitude, and the famine-stricken region is spread over such a wide area (five times the size of France) that more than 10 degrees of latitude are involved. This means that, in direct proportion from south to north, the harvest will be from July 3 to 23 (new style).

"It will be seen that funds will be needed to the end of July to feed all these millions, and then the harvest will bring relief, but there are many hundreds of thousands to whom the harvest will not bring relief, for they have neither land nor cattle. "The few cows that are in existence are in such a pitiful condition themselves that they are useless for milking purposes. The result is that babies and young children are being forced to eat the coarse black bread and the indigestible young cucumbers, which are luxuries to the adult Russian peasant today, but are death to the baby, or at any rate spell disease. "These people have sold their all, and in most cases have likewise sold in advance all that the harvest might bring them, They have sold themselves and their work, and from all over the southcastern provinces reports are coming in of young women and girls forced to prostitute themselves to obtain food. For these suffering people, to whom the coming harvest means nothing, relief must be afforded during the whole of the coming year.

"Meanwhile epidemics of disease add to the terrible conditions obtaining. The difficulties encountered in relieving these people are made ten times worse now, owing to the practically impassable condition of the country roads. The winter snows are melting and projecting vast volumes of water in countless cataracts towards the Volga, and neither man nor beast can hope to do anything in the way of

Dr. Kennard makes an urgent appeal for tinned milk and for meat juices. He says: "I have seen the Zemstvo workers and investigated their methods, and can vouch for it that not only is the work being carried out in a businesslike and capable manner, but that the most is made out of every farthing."

Relief For Hungry Chinese

Methodist Club Say Sabbath Is Desecrated By Open Shops

An interesting session of the Metho dist Men's club of Wollaston was held Thursday evening, the attendance being larger than usual. The new boys' choir furnished the music and the speaker of the evening was the Rev. John Sinclair of Brookline on the subject of "Scotland," though the more appropriate name for the address would have been "McKay of Uganda,'

McKay was the founder of the English Missions at Uganda, a district in Central Africa. Mr. Sinclain was a very pleasing speaker with sufficient Scotch dialect to make it pleasant to the ear. He told many reminiscences of his college days Kay and he also told of the first visi of Moody and Sankey to Edinburg. The club before adjourning passed the following resolution:

"It is evident from the large num ousiness that the day is openly and wilfully desecrated and men who observe the Sabbath by closing their places of business are forced to com pete with those engaged in the same business who do not keep open on Strube Orchestral club, composed of Sunday, Therefore be it,

Resolved, That the Methodist Men' club of Wollaston does protest against the granting of victuallers license to any person or firm who are not legally entitled to the m, made reit be determined by some means or other whether the applicant intends to or has been complying with the full intent of the law by having his place of business so equipped that he will be entitled to receive a license

New York, April 20.—Benedict Gimbel, the wealthy Philadelphia merchant who was arrested in this city on the double charge of exerting improper influence over Ivar Clark, 16 years old, son of a broker in this city, and attempted bribery of the police officers who made the arrest, is in St. Mary's hospital, Hoboken. Bleeding from gashes on his throat and severed arteries in both wrists, Gimbel was found at 7 o'clock last night in a room which he had engaged the night before at the Palace hotel in Hoboken. Vessel Passed Through "Quake"

New York, April 20.-From midnight Tuesday night until 5 o'clock Wednesday morning steamer La Provence, which arrived in port last night, passed through a storm which, the officers of the ship say, has rarely been exceeded in violence on the Atlantic. Great waves broke over the liner's decks, but no rain fell, the night being perfectly clear. After five hours the storm abated as suddenly as it had come. Captain Alix of the liner believes the strange storm was the result of the same forces which caused the earthquake shocks ir Mexico.

She paused. A sudden longing for the country took possession of her-for the real country, where no smart, high | sically seated traps met the incoming train. where roads wound between fields, not lawn, and where the air was full of autumn scents and sounds, the smell of earth and withered grass, the rustle of dry leaves underfoot. She turned abruptly from the window and with a swiftness that denoted decision crossed the room and rang the bell.

Prompt as a trapdoor fairy Antoi nette appeared.

"I am not going shopping after all."

Antoinette opened her brown eyes wide in astonishment. She would have "Oh, yes, I know. I've had success opened them still wider an hour, later too. I've gained it. I'm counted for had she seen Mrs. St. Aubyn seated in tunate as the run of men go, yet the a car whose general dinginess pro- thing I've wanted most I've never had places off the general line of travel. Instead of well groomed commuters and their wives there were men whose clothes were a bit rusty and women whose bulky satchels and bags bore witness that they had been to spend a week with daughter in the city. Wide eved children clung tenaciously to dolls and bananas, crying babies were vehemently urged to "look out the window at grandpa," and when the train began to move goodbys were said with an abandon which half amused, half stirred Mrs. St. Aubyn. In her world repression was the law of life. It was long since she had been in touch with the simple, homely things of existence. "To think that this actually occurs in New York!" she murmured to herself and then laughed a little guiltily, for under her monogrammed morocco bag there reposed a neat brown paper parcel containing chicken sandwiches and a bottle of olives that she had paused to buy at the station in the breathlessness of her flight. Bought at the station! With what horrified shruggings would Antoinette have protested had she known, and with what ejaculations would she have complained against the crowded stuffiness of the train! "Fairview!" called the conductor.

Mrs. St. Aubyn looked at her time table. Four stations more!

It was noon when she stepped out at Meadowbank. The narrow platform was deserted save for a young telegraph operator, who looked appreciatively at Mrs. St. Aubyn's tailor made costume of gray and violet and inshook her head. She would rather walk. How well she knew the road! And how little it had changed! She followed it by a cluster of trim fenced houses, past the general store and on to where the fields widened and stretched away to hills whose summits were a misty blue. Blackberry vines, rusty with fall, tangled at the roadside, and here and there asters glowed like a purple flame. At the far edge of the village outskirts she came to a rambling white house. Grass grew knee deep in its yard. Its windows were shuttered. Its door bore a placard, "For Sale." Over its porch the bare tendrils of a honeysuckle vine stirred still faintly discernible through a netwith amazement.

For Traveling Crane to Handle Stone At Quincy Adams

As noted in the Daily Ledger a few days ago, the committee of the Quincy Board of Trade appointed at the last meeting, have accomplished quickly all they desired. The following Haven & Hartford Railroad company are anxious to accommodate the Quincy granite men who are large shippers of granite at Quincy Adams:

The N. Y., N. H. & H. R. Co. Office of the Assistant General Supt Boston, Mass., April 22, 1907. Committee of the Quincy Board of Trade, on account of accommodations P. D. Warren, . Arthur Gray, J. S. for Handling Stone at Quincy Adams,

Mr. J. Q. A. Field, Chairman. Dear Sirs:-With reference to the conference held in my office Wedneshas authorized an appropriation of hall on Friday eveing. $15,000.00 for traveling crane and stone business at that point. The Employees of NavyYards, Naval Stacrane will be ordered immediately, and its installation will be made as Continental Americ quickly as the manufacturers can rapidly as possible.

Trusting that this will enable you to make a very satisfactory report and that you will have the crane within a reasonable time, I remain, Yours very truly,

It is said that the crane will be very powerful one covering four freight tracks to be laid in the new freight vard between Water street and School street, which will probably be connected with the Quincy freight yard between School street and Granie street by widening the Schoo street bridge.

The railroad has already supplied two men to operate the present derricks which instantly relieved the congestion. It is now possible to load cars more expeditously so that long waits for turn at the derrick are

The committee of the Board of Trade is now satisfied that the prope course was pursued in going to the railroad company first rather than to the Railroad Commissioners. They believe the N. Y., N. H. & H. R. R. will act promptly in installing the new crane, but do not expect it before Memorial day.

PEACE DELEGATION

Stead Would Send Ten American Pilgrims to Europe

APPROVED BY HARVARD MEN

Latter Take Steps Toward Raising Fund of $100,000--Professor Munsterberg Balks and Gives Evidence of Extreme Vexation

Cambridge, Mass., April 23.-A mass meeting of Harvard students, in the Union last night, endorsed William T. Stead's plan of sending an American peace delegation to Europe and furthered Stead's request that Harvard should take the lead in raising money for the movement by the appointment of a college committee.

Professor Munsterberg, who was th presiding officer, is the professor of psychology in the university and one of the German delegates at the recent committee, saying that the meeting which Stead had just addressed was chance gathering and not a representa tive one as far as Harvard was con cerned. He said that he did not believe that the meeting had authority to star such a movement on the part of Har vard, and that he would leave the cha before he would put such a motion which he accordingly did. When he stepped from the platform, Professo William James, the professor of philoso phy at the university, took his place and the plan was quickly adopted and th committee appointed.

Mr. Stead spoke for nearly an hour to a crowded hall, describing many o the features of the recent peace con ference and recounting the conditions it Europe. In conclusion he repeated hi belief that the only practical way bring about peace was for the nation to know each other better. "The best way for this to be done is t send a delegation from one country to another and I suggest that 10 American pilgrims be sent to Europe. It will cos The Quincy Savings bank did quite a about $100,000 and the money should be raised by the colleges. I would sug gest that Harvard, as the oldest, take Scarcely had Stead taken his seat when L. K. Banigan, a student of the law school, moved that a committee of 10 be appointed to take charge of the movement on the part of Harvard Munsterberg refused to put the motion to the meeting and explained his action n the course of his speech.

Professor James, who was on the platform, asked Munsterberg for more definite reasons for refusing to enter tain the motion. These Munsterbers refused to give and left the chair and the building. After the adoption of the 'springlike days' about this time, and the committee consisting of 10 students and after the committee had conferred with Stead it was announced that permanent committee had been elected consisting of the four class presidents the vice president of the Union and three undergraduates, to see what Harvard should do in carrying out Stead's

"George," he said, "we are old friends. I want you to remember it. I want you also to remember that I am in a hideous state of worry and nerves." He passed him hand over his forehead just above his eyes, as though they were hurting him. "I am not behaving to you as a guest should to his host. I admit it freely. I have lost my temper more than once during the last twenty-four hours. I am sor ry. Forgive me if you can, George."

"Willingly, Andrew," Duncombe answered. "I shall think no more about

"At the same time," Pelham continued, "there is another point to be considered. Have you been quite fair to me George? Remember that Phylli-Poynton is the one person whose exist ence reconciles me to life. You had never even heard her name before sent for you. You went abroad, like the good fellow you are, to find her for me. You assure me that you have discovered-nothing. Let me put you upon your honor, George. Is this absolutely true?"

"I have discovered nothing about Phyllis Poynton," Duncombe declared quietly. "About Miss Fielding, then?"

"Phyllis Poynton and Miss Fielding are two very different persons," Duncombe declared.

"That may be so," Pelham said, "although I flud it hard to believe that combe?" God ever gave to two women voices so exactly similar. Yet if you are as sured that this is so why not be al together frank with me?"

"What have you to complain of? Duncombe asked.

"Something has happened at Runton House in which Mr. Fielding and his daughter are concerned," Pelham continued. "I have heard all manner of strange rumors. This afternoon I distinctly heard the girl's voice in the lane outside. She was crying out as though in fear. A few minutes later l heard you speaking to some one in the library. Yet when I entered the room you would not answer me." "Supposing I grant everything that you say, Andrew," Duncombe answered. "Supposing I admit that strange things have happened with regard to Mr. Fielding and his daughter which have resulted in their leaving Runton House-even that she was there in the lane this afternoon-how does all this concern you?" "Because," Pelham declared, striking the table with his fist, "I am not satisfied that the girl who has been staying at Runton House and calling herself Miss Fielding is not in reality Phyllis Povnton." Duncombe lit a cigarette and passed them round.

"Do you know what they are saying tonight of Mr. Fielding and his daughter?" he asked quietly. "That the one is a robber and the other an adventuress," Duncombe answered. "This much is certainly true, They have both left Runton House at a moment's notice and without taking leave of their host and hostess. Remember I never knew Phyllis Poynton. You did. Ask yourself whether she is the sort of young person to obtain hospitality under false pretenses and then abuse it-to associate herself in a fraud with a self confessed rob-

"The idea," Pelham said quietly, "is absurd."

"While we are on the subject," Spen cer remarked, drawing the cigarettes toward him, "may I ask you a few questions, Mr. Pelham? For instance, had Miss Poynton any relations in France?"

"Not to my knowledge," Pelham answered. "I have known both her and her brother for a great many years, and I never heard either of them mention any." "Why did she go to Paris, then?"

"To meet her brother." "And why did he go abroad?"

"It was a whim, I think-just a desire to see a few foreign countries before he settled down to live the life of a country gentleman." "You believe that he had no other

"Mr. Spencer," he said, "my visit to night was mainly to you. I dare say you are aware that a somewhat unpleasant thing has happened at my house. My people tell me that you called there this morning and inquired for Mr. Fielding." Spencer nodded.

"Quite true," he answered. "I called, but did not see him. He appears to have left somewhat hurriedly while I was waiting. "You did not even catch a glimpse of him?

At the business meeting Councilman Wendell H. Hull was reelected president, C: L. Seavey vice presi lent, L. F. Besse secretary, C. A Campbell treasurer. The chairman of the Benevolent committee is C. U Godfrey, and the new committee or Public Interests includes H. T. Whitman, E. S. Tenney and R. M. Watt. The secretary's report showed the average attendance at the meetings to been 25 and the largest 50. Mr. Hathaway told of the work of the year and predicted a prosperous season next winter.

The treasurer reported 40 paid memberships at $2 each. The expenses in excess of $80 had been met by the president and friends of the and Prayer Book.

Rev. E. A. Chase considered that the meetings imparted knowledge and help to members, and that the social side and comradeship should be encouraged. At his suggestion it was voted to increase the dues to $3 per year, and an effort will be made to increase the membership.

The first speaker of the evening was John S. Adams, vice treasurer of since Mr. Clapp's talk will be in ushe Provident Institution for Savings of Boston. He said the sentiment and theory seemed to be in favor of the Savings Bank insurance plan, but questioned if the people understood the facts. In 90 years his bank had never passed a dividend. The trustees met weekly and received no fees. The deposits were a sacred trust. Life insurance was complicated, and the savings bank officials did not understand it It had been considered wise to separ ate National and Savings Banks, and there should be no other combinations. The funds of a savings bank could not be used to guaranteed insurance policies. It took but a little flurry to cause a run on a savings bank. Savings bank insurance is not a new thing, as Gladstone introduced it in England 40 years ago. It had met with but little success. It was no advantage to savings bank.

A representative gathering of Quincy gentlemen attended the hearing given by the Railroad Commissioners this morning on the petition of the City Council for improved street railway service, and most of them spoke.

Among these were Councilmen Hull and McGilvary, City Solicitor Chomas, ex-City Solicitor Blackmur, ex-Senator Sprague, County Commissioner John F. Merrill, Walter M. Hatch, Mr. Eastman, N. G. Nickerson, John H. Roberts, James F. Burke, W. H. Teasdale, and others.

The general complaint was insufficiency of cars, poor connections at City square, inadequate waiting rooms at City Square, slow running time between Quincy and Dudley street, Boston, wrong signs, and on some lines poor cars. Fifteen or twenty minute service was desired especially on the West Quincy line.

The gentlemen appeared as delegates f Board of Trade, Citizens Association, vice Thomas Roche Donovan sang City Council, Wollaston Unitarian club, and Wollaston Congregational club, and one spoke for the Fore River shipyard men living at Wollaston.

The earnest effort of Councilman Hull to get out a representative gathering by Pitts, John Silvia, Paul Avery, Joseph poster, postals, clubs, etc., was questioned at length by Lawyer Warren, but the Councilman had nothing to conceal, and admitted he had done considerable to enthuse the people.

Shortly after midnight Monday night a sentry discovered fire in a storehouse used for rope varn. The finding of two pieces of fuse of a kind not used in the French navy has aroused suspicion that it was not altogether accidental. There were no casualties.

> Expected to Make Many Speeches During the Summer. In Which He Will Defend the Administration Against All Attacks

IS READY FOR CALL

Taft Considered Definitely Out

Washington, April 24.—Secretary Taft returned to Washington to find himself generally regarded as the man whom the Republican party will nominate next year to succeed President Roosevelt. If nominated the secretary will immediately resign from the cabinet to devote himself exclusively to the campaign. His platform will be the Roosevelt policy.

The expressions of opinion of his qualifications for the office are interpreted by his friends as a call to arms and the secretary will be ready to respond to that call if it shall be confirmed by the next Republican nominat ing convention and he is nominated to succeed Mr. Roosevelt.

will probably begin in June, when he will make the first of a series of speeches in that state in support of the Roosevelt policies. These will be devoted to a discussion of national issues. The secretary will defend the president in the matter of railroad rate legislation, the prosecution of the Standard Oil, the supervision of corporations, the Brownsville affray and other problems for the solution of which the Roosevelt administration has been attacked.

But all of his time will not be spent in Ohio. The secretary has invitations from many western states and upon his return from the Philippines he will probably make several speeches in New England.

Secretary Taft has no idea of abandoning his trip to the Philippines. He promised the Filipinos years ago to be present at the opening of their first legislative assembly, and this promise he the assembly in October and after about two weeks return home, arriving here the latter part of November. He will not give any political interviews to the newspapers. His attitude politically will be made known from time to time either in public speeches or in official statements.

King denied that he had committed any illegal acts while in charge of the bank.

"If our host has no objection," Spen cer answered, glancing toward Pelham.

"None whatever," Duncombe answer ed, also glancing toward Pelham. There was a moment's silence. Pelham raised his head. "If Lord Runton desires it, I will withdraw," he said slowly. "At the same time I must confess that I, too am interested in this matter. If Lord Runton has no objection to my presence I should like to remain. My dis cretion goes without saying."

Duncombe moved uneasily in his chair. His eyes sought Spencer's for guidance, but found his head averted. Lord Runton raised his eyebrows slightly at what he considered a somewhat vulgar curiosity, but his reply was prompt.

"You are a friend of Duncombe's Mr. Pelham," he said, "and that is enough. I have to ask not only you but all three of you, to consider what I am going to tell you as absolutely confidential."

"Mr. and Miss Fielding came to me with letters from my brother and with many convincing proofs of their iden tity. We none of us had the slightest suspicion concerning them. Their be havior was exactly what it should have been. Nothing about them excited remark in any way, except the unusual number of telegrams and telephone messages which Mr. Fielding 7c was always receiving. That, however. 20c doz was quite in accord with our ideas of an American business man and didn' 45c doz seem to us in the least remarkable."

"The telegrams were delivered through a neighboring office?" Spencer asked

"Yes." Lord Runton answered, "but they were all in code. I happen to know that, because the postmaster brought the first one up himself and explained that he was afraid that he must have made some mistake, as the message was incomprehensible. Field ing only laughed and gave the man a sovereign. The message was absolutely correct, he declared. He told me afterward that whenever he was speculating he always coded his messages, and it seemed perfectly reason-

Spencer nodded.

"Just so!" he murmured. "This morning," Lord Runton continued, "Mr. Fielding rather upset our plans. We were all to have spent the day at the duke's and dined there. There was a big shoot for the men, as you know. At breakfast time, however, Mr. Fielding announced that he had a man coming over with a motor car from Norwich for them to try and begged to be excused. So we had to go without them.

"De Rothe was staying with me, as you know, and just before we started he had a telegram that a messenger from the embassy was on his way down. He hesitated for some time as to whether he ought not to stay at home so as to be here when he arrived, but we persuaded him to come with us and promised to send him back after luncheon. When we got to Chestow, however, the wind had become a gale, and it was impossible to shoot decently. De Rothe was a little uneasy all the time, I could see, so he and I and a few of the others returned here, and the rest went up to Chestow. Just as we arrived Fielding passed us in a great motor car, with his daughter behind. When we got to the house De Rothe inquired for the messenger. He was told that he was in Mr. Fielding's sitting room, but when we got there we found the door locked, and through the key hole we could hear a man groaning. We broke the door in and found De Rothe's messenger half un conscious and a rifled dispatch box upon the floor. He has given us no coherent account of what has happen ed yet, but it is quite certain that he was attacked and robbed by Mr. Fielding." "What was stolen?" Spencer asked.

"Money?" "No; a letter," Lord Runton answered. "De Rothe says very little, but I never saw a man so broken up. He has left for London tonight."

"The matter is in the hands of the police, of course?" Spencer asked. Lord Runton shook his head.

"The Rothe took me into his room and locked the door a few minutes after we had discovered what had happened. He implored me to keep the whole affair from the press and from time was made last evening without inpublicity in any form. His whole career was at stake, he said, and very much more than his career. All that we could do was to follow Mr. Fielding could. Even then he had little hope of Lord Runton turned toward him, "I have treated you with confidence Mr. Spencer," he said. "Will you tell me now why you called at my house to see Mr. Fielding today?"

Spencer hesitated, but only for a mo-

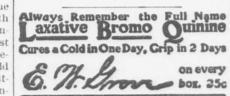

"Certainly," he said. "I came because I knew that Mr. Fielding was halfway to America and his daughter in Russia. Some friends of mine were curious to know whom your guests could be."

Pelham raised his head.

"You lied to me, then!" he exclaimed. "I had as much right to lie to you," Spencer answered calmly, "as you had to ask me questions. I had"-

He stopped short in the middle of his sentence. The faces of the three men were a study in varying expressions. From some other part of the house there came to them the sound of a woman's sudden cry of terror-the cry of a woman who had awakened suddenly to look into the face of death. Duncombe's uplifted glass fell with a crash upon the table. The red wine trickled across the tablecloth.

TO STOP A WEDDING

Woman Kills Her Former Lover and Then Takes Own Life

CALLED HIM BY TELEPHONE

Met In Doctor's Office, Where Man Was Repeatedly Shot--Tragedy Barely Preceded Scheduled Wedding--Bride-Elect Prostrated

Oil City, Pa., April 25.—Thaddeus S. Ross of this city was shot three times and instantly killed here by Miss Belle Stroup. The woman then shot herself through the heart. The tragedy occurred in the office of Dr. George W. Magee while the physician was at lunch. Both victims were members of rominent families. Ross was to have been married last night to Miss Drusilla Sampsell of this city. There were no witnesses to the shooting. The murderer and suicide was a former sweet-Leart of the dead man.

Ross was dining at home with his family, discussing his coming wedding, when the telephone rang. His father answered the call and a woman's voice made inquiry for "Thad." Ross called his son and the young man, after answering, informed his family he had to; go to the doctor's office for a few minutes but would return as soon as he could. This was the last time his parents saw him alive.

Miss Stroup arrived in the city yesterday noon from Bradford and went directly to the office of Magee. Finding no one in the office, she called Ross of the telephone and asked him to come to the office to see her. What took place there no one will ever know. It could not be ascertained from persons who were in the building at the time that any loud talking took place between them or that they had a quarrel.

When Magee returned from lunch and opened the door he found the dead bodies. That of Ross was in a chair in a corner of the office, his head was lying back on the chair, and blood was streaming from a bullet wound in his neck. His forehead was burned with powder where a bullet entered his brain. Another ball pierced his heart. Miss Stroup's body was lying a few feet away, face downward, and it partly blocked the office door. Blood was flowing from a wound in her left side. Ross had seated himself in a large chair and apparently, while talking to the girl, had placed both hands in his trousers' pockels. The girl wore long shooting had slipped both hands from them and they hung loose from her bloody wrists black kid gloves, but before doing the bloody wrists.

It is believed that she walked over to the chair in which Ross was seated and, the chair in which Ross was scatted and, shielding the 32-calibre revolver with her dress, fired the first shot at his heart. Apparently he never moved, as the pos tion of the body was natural when found. Wishing to make sure of her work, the girl fired two more shots, on taking effect in the neck and the other entering the brain. Standing over her victim, she then shot herself through the heart. The revolver dropped from her hands and was found near her body

Miss Stroup was born in this county 28 years ago. Both her parents are dead and she is survived by one sister and two brothers. Ross was 35 years of age. He was employed in the postoffice here. He was a veteran of the Spanish-American war and served in the Philippines with the regular army at its close. Miss Sampsell, the bride-elect, is prostrated. Left Sick Bed to Shoot Ross Bradford, Pa., April 25.-Miss Hala Belle Stroup, who went from Bradford to Oil City and there killed Thaddens Ross, conducted a dressmaking establishment here. For a week she had been ill. On Tuesday a letter was received by her from Ross, announcing his coming marriage with a young woman. She arose yesterday morning from her bed of sickness and, despite the advice of her friends, went to Oil City. It is claimed that Ross had promised to marry her, the wedding day being set for some time in July next.

Pugilist Suspected of Murder London, April 25.—"Pedlar" Palmer, be English pugilist, and another man were arrested at the Purley railroad station on suspicion of having caused the death of an unknown man whose ody was found in the carriage of a train coming from Epsom after the races, in which Palmer and his companion had ridden. The man appar ently was killed by heavy blows. Other assengers Leard the sounds of a vio-

He passed through the door and locked it on the inside. In half a dozen hasty strides he was across the room and inside the smaller apartment where he had left the girl. With a little gasp of relief he realized that she was there still. She was pale, and spot of color was blazing in he heeks. Her hair and dress were little disordered. With trembling fit gers she was fastening a little brooc into her blouse as he entered. A rush of night air struck him from a wide open window.

"What has happened?" he called out. "I have been terrified," she answered. "I am sorry I called out. I could not help it. A man came here-through the window. There were several laughable situa tions in the drama as well as love making. All of the characters were well impersonated and reflected great credit upon the gentlemen and ladies who were in the cast.

The cast in addition to Mr. Malcolm the executive committee of the state and Miss Giles, included J. Ernest Collins, Miss Margaret A. Craig, William L. Troupe Miss Jennie G. Grassick Miss Georgianna Michael, John G. Giles, George T. Craig and Ernest Robertson.

Penniman and Rideout were the top pair at the duplicate whist tournamen for pairs at the Granite City club rooms on Wednesday evening. Interest in this system is growing rapidly, and the more it is played the better it is liked. When the tournaments were comnenced several weeks ago four pairs were all that could be interested. The number of pairs has increased every week since, until at the tournament this week eleven pairs contested for the op round of the ladder.

The opening lead of these hands nade a wide difference in the number of tricks taken. This was true partic alarly in one of the boards. A certain pening by south resulted in a score of 0 to 3 in favor of east and west, while at another stage an entirely different opening by south resulted in a score of to 4 for north and south.

There were two or three such boards which made a great difference in the ultinate result. The success of the tournaments this month has been such that they will probably be continued through May. The result of Wednesday play was as Some peculiar hands developed in this

CLASH ON WARSHIP

The Georgia's Offcers and Men Said to Be Discontented

A SCANDAL IS THREATENED

Commander Prevented Regular Divine Service on Sunday and Issued Petty Orders Against Games -- President May Personally Investigate

Washington, April 26.-If President Roosevelt is inclined he will find time during his visit to Hampton Roads to make personal inquiry regarding the state of affairs said to prevail on board the United States steamship Georgia, Captain Davenport commanding. If he is too much engaged in attending to the official part of his program to make such an investigation personally he can at least direct Rear Admiral Evans, the commander-in-chief of the Atlantic fleet, to take steps to put an end to conditions that threaten to prove a scandal.

Such are declared by competent authorities to be the conditions on the new battleship Georgia. Either Davenport is responsible for these conditions or he is the victim of a conspiracy and his officers and men are doing him the gravest injustice. A court of inquiry would bring out the facts.

Orders have already been issued to the Georgia to meet the Mayflower off Piney point upon the occasion of the president's second visit to Jamestown in June, on Georgia day, and to take him from there to Hampton Roads and return. It is probable that unless conditions have improved in the meantime they will then be brought to the attention of the president.

If any one of a dozen reports which have been pouring into the navy department for the last few months are true Davenport would appear to be unfit to command the smallest man-of-war or the navy list, much less the first-class battleship Georgia, with a complement of 21 officers and some 800 blue jackets.

The department has had official knowledge for some time that all was not right between Davenport and his officers and men. More than a month ago the chaplain of the Georgia officially applied for immediate detachment from that vessel on the ground that he was not permitted to perform his clerical duties even on Sunday. Upon investigation it appeared that Davenpert, in flagrant violation of the navy regulations, had required the men to perform such duties on Sunday that made it impossible for them to attend divine service.

Instead of court martialing Davenport for what was clearly a breach of the regulations, the department ordered him to cease his interference with the liberty of the men guaranteed to them by the regulations, and the application of the chaplain was disapproved. In order to get even with Chaplain Charlton, Davenport has recently is sued an order that not only games of cards, but all other games, tiddledy winks, chess and other such harmless amusements, are hereafter prohibited on board the Georgia on Sunday. The canteen has been shut down on Sunday. practically the only time when the men have time to make use of it and purchase writing materials and such other harmless delicacies as are provided.

In addition to the chaplain's application for detachment came a similar request from the navigator, who confessed that after repeated and earnest effort he was unable to please his commanding officer or to gain his confidence, and earnestly urged that he be given duty under another captain. At least one other officer also requested detachment for similar reasons. The enlisted men's division of the bureau of navigation has received numerous pleas from members of the Georgia's crew to be sent to another ship, complaining bitterly against the conduct of their skipper.

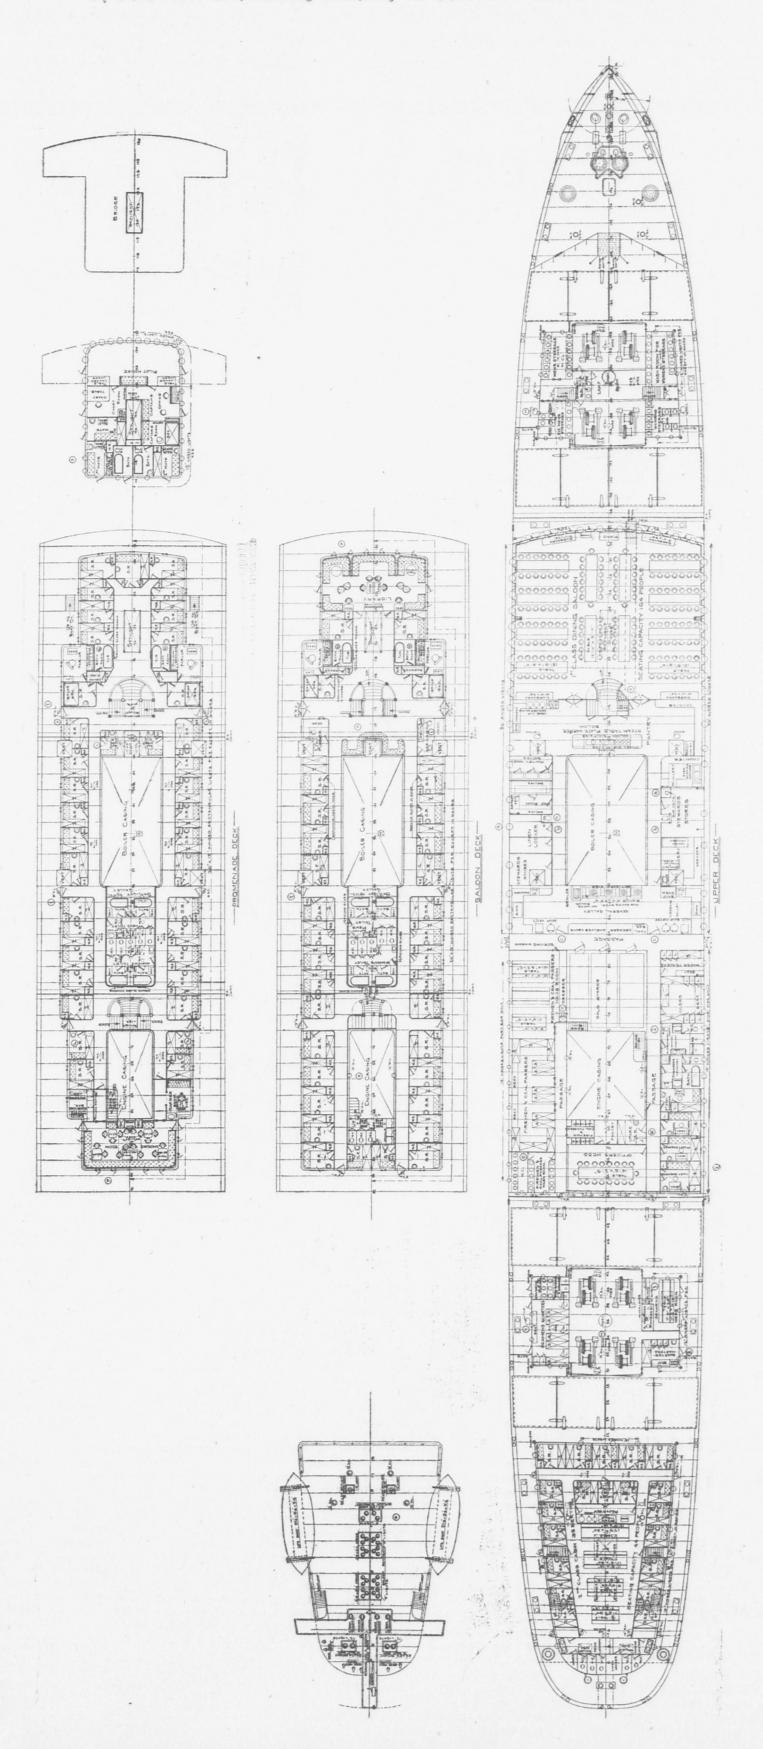

A recent example of the attitude of Davenport was his action in placing the Georgia under sailing orders, which means that every officer and man is kept on board ready to weigh anchor at a moment's notice. Davenport, it is said, then betook himself to the beach on three days' leave. It is also learned that from the time the Georgia left Boston on 'Feb. 21 last, until she sailed for Cuba the last of March, not a single enlisted man-not even a chief petty offirer-was allowed to go ashore.

During all of that time Davenport was issuing on his own authority numerous orders, said to be of a nagging character, the result of which has been to throw the whole ship's company into a state of discontent bordering on despair. The navy department was amazed to find at the time of the chaplain's request for detachment that Dayenport's orders to his ship had exceeded the number of 40 at that time, and are said now to number upwards of 50. Until the Georgia was recently attached to the Atlantic fleet Davenport was practically responsible to no one but himself, although he at all times was subject to the authority of the department.

Suggestion That a Bureau Be Established at Washington

NEEDED FOR INFORMATION

Authorities Guarding Our Island Possessions Are Now Scattered--Plan to Give More Careful Attention to Parentless Conditions

Washington, April 25.-Establish. ment at Washington of a central by. reau of information and report for all our insular possessions is greatly desired by the administration, and Repesentative Parsons, a member of the house committee on insular affairs, will again introduce a bill at the next session of congress making provision for such headquarters. The president recommended this in his last annual message and suggested that the bureau be under the war or state departments.

Our insular possessions do not receive the attention at Washington due them because of the lack of centralization in their administration. The affairs of the Philippine islands are cared for by the bureau of insular af. I mer homes of Spiritua fairs. Porto Rico, Guam, Tutilla and parts of the country the Midway islands have no similar permanent organization here to inform their country and the legislators of their needs and prospects and to obtain legislation and appropriations in their behalf.

Representative Parsons said in discussing his efforts in this direction: 'There is imperative need for a permanent bureau of information and report which with the representatives from our insular possessions, will form a those localities as the interests of the self-governing colonies and the crown agents of the crown colonies do in Engand. We have provided for delecates to congress from Hawaii, Porton Rico and the Philippines, but we need

"Take Porto Rico for example. The governor reports to the secretary of state, the attorney general to our attorney general, the treasurer and auditor to our secretary of the treasury, the commissioner of the interior to our secetary of the interior and the commissioner of education to our commissioner of education. The governor of Hawall reports to our secretary of the interior The officers in charge of Guam, Tutull and Midway islands are not required to make any reports at all. This parentess condition is a handicap on proper legislation.

"A year ago Governor Winthrop was anx'ous that the Porto Rican governits waterfront so that the dock fac ties of San Juan could be increased. needed information and sought for some government bureau or official in Washington who would have knowl edge of the legal and practical situation sought to be remedied. There was none to be found. It was necessary for Winthrop himself to come here to explain the condition and the need and to push the legislation.

"The commissioner from Porto Rico was, of course, of assistance. But the representatives from our possessions coming here in a legislative capacity cannot be expected to bring with them at their own expense a bureau of statisties and information and furnish inquirers the facilities which the bureau of insular affairs affords in the case of be Philippines. They can agitate, but for facts and for sympathetic advice and aid they, too, need a department or bureau of the government, just as legslators interested in the Indians need ne Indian bureau for information and ssistance.

"I understand that the commercial incrests of Hawaii have been considerably handicapped by her helpless condition, and that the capacity of our other governmental departments, desirable though it may be, has been such that they have acquired most of the here to consider the proavailable waterfronts there simply because there has been no bureau here to look after the interests of the islands. and upon which the authorities and Francis S. Key. A co merchants of Hawaii could call to speak zens was appointed to a in their behalf.

"Who knows aught about Guam. Tutuila or the Midway islands? And yet if we are to possess them we have he sacred duty of providing them the best of what they need in various ways. In practice these possessions do appeal to the bureau of insular affairs, and so kindhearted are its officials that they do lend assistance. On the other band, they are fearful lest their interest, unrequired by law, be mistaken for a desire to aggrandize their own 'mportance."

The Morality of Americans.

By LUDWIG FULDA, Eminent German Dramatist and Poet.

MERICA is a far more moral country than Germany. Its educational system is equal to the best of Europe. In women's colleges the United States excels, and THE AMERI-CAN WOMAN LEADS THE WORLD. German parents might well send their daughters to America for higher education, and the spirit they would bring back would do Germany much good.

The MORAL LIFE of the American people is on a higher plane than that of Germany. Without a question the life of the young people is purer, the demeanor of men among themselves less frivolous. One sees less of vice on the streets of the large cities than on those of our own.

The belief that the American woman lords it over the sterner sex, an idea prevalent in Europe, is unfounded. Conditions there provide | moval. for meeting more on an equal footing rather than have the one lord it over the other. As a result of the mingling of the sexes from early childhood American marriages, on the whole, are happier, for the man and the woman HAVE LEARNED TO UNDERSTAND THEMSELVES and better know the shortcomings of the other and the better side as well. There a young couple has years in which to pass judgment on the question of marriage, while in Germany the daughter is virtually THROWN UPON THE MARKET by her parents before she has learned anything about the opposite sex.

ONE RESULT OF THE AMERICAN CONDITION IS THAT CE-LIBACY IS NOT LOOKED UPON BY AMERICAN WOMEN AS SOME-THING TO BE DREADED. SINGLE WOMEN ARE LOOKED UPON WITH EQUAL RESPECT AND HONOR TO THOSE SHOWN THEIR tion. MARRIED SISTERS.

America's Prosperity Is Overwhelming Her.

By JACOB H. SCHIFF, Multimillionaire New York Banker.

12 HE conditions in which we find ourselves at present appear 76 much misunderstood, particularly in Europe. It is a fact that we are suffering from AN EXCESS OF PROSPER-ITY which is simply overwhelming us. Our industries cannot find labor with which to master the orders pouring in upon them. Our railroads are in need of equipment and ADDITIONAL FACIL-ITIES to handle the immense business of the country, and the banks can only furnish part of the working capital with which to do the Postmaster General Von Myer, the latest addition to the Cabinet, starts work with a much needed reform in his department. He announced quietly, but firmly, to his subordinates that he did not care about the title of "General" being tacked on to his his predecessors in office. Plain Mr Myer was good enough for him, and he thought the numerous other "Generals" of the Department had better adopt civil designations also. This is a small matter, but it lops off a little governmental flubdub that was rather annoying to plain people who had to do business with the Postoffice. It indicates also that the public in likely to get a plain businesslike administration from a plain businesslike man.

It is sadly discouraging that after all the trouble Secretary of Agriculture Wilson and Dr. Wiley, chief chemist and food expert of the department, have taken in getting a Pure Food law passed, that they should be confronted with natural obstacle that even the majority of the department cannot overawe, and that can hardly be hauled into court and prosecuted. It has all arisen from the perversity of the bees in Hawaii, and the chief entomologist, Dr. Van Dine of the experiment station that is now on his way to Washington to consult about it. When the pure food law was passed, certain standards of purity were set up that might not be transgressed. One of these deals with the amount of glucose in pure honey. The department decree! that there should be only so many miligrams or centigrams or something else of glucose in pure honey. But Dr. Van Dine has discovered that Hawaiian bees make honey with more glucose in it than is allowed by the Department of Agriculture, and he is now on his way to Washington to get the matter straightened out. Honey is an important export from the islands, and as there seems no way of reforming the depraved Hawaiian bees, it looks as though the standard of the department would have to be hanged. Of course Nature was wrong and Secretary Wilson was right about pure food but as there is no way of getting at Nature, it looks as though the Secretary woud have to reverse himself. | April 8

Did You Know That Many of Those In List Were Expressmen?

The special meeting of the City Council on Monday evening next will be of unusual interest, because action to be taken on the granting of licenses to transport liquor, to collect rictuallers, etc.

The people demand that the City Council shall reduce materially the number of licenses. Instead of 20 or 30 alleged expressmen, there should be only five or six to receive licenses. The number of junk licenses should also be reduced to ten or less, and only a very few of those who have asked for licenses as common victuallers desire to enter that business.

Taylor Terrace Opened to Public

The fine building lots on the Tayor farm on Hancock street at Wolaston have long been admired, and for years the people have been waiting for an opportunity to build a home in that locality. It is a very desirable tract of land near the main street between Quincy and Boston with its electric cars, and only six miles from the State House. A new public school building of brick was recently erected nearby by the city.

The Taylor terrace is also near the Metropolitan Quincy Shore parkway, and near Quincy bay with its yachting facilities and other attractions. No premiums were needed to sell these choice lots, but the Northern Land Company of Boston have opened it up and offer today $2,000 in presents to purchasers of lots at the auction sale next week. Lots will also be sold on easy terms.

"If you prefer it." Lord Runton said doubtfully. "Come as early as possible. Good night, Duncombe! I should like to know who your nocturnal visitor was.'

"Of course I have," Duncombe answered. "You are working for me." "Was working for you," Spencer corrected gently. "That is all over, isn't

"What do you mean?" Duncombe exclaimed.

Spencer stood squarely upon his feet. He looked a little tired.

"My engagement from you was to find Miss Phyllis Poynton," he said softly. "You and I are perfectly well aware that the young lady in question is-well, a few yards behind that cur tain," he said, motioning with his head toward it. "My task is accomplished and I consider myself a free man."

Spencer looked a little disgusted. "My dear fellow," he said, "any one with the brains of a mouse must have discovered that. The mention of either the boy or the girl seemed to change them as though like magic from pleasant, talkative men and women, very eager to

"But what about Pelham?"

Duncombe's face clouded over. "Pelham has no prior claim," he answered. "As soon as she is safe he shall know the whole truth. I would tell him at this moment but that I am a little afraid of him. He would never understand as we can the intricacy of the situation. And now-to the pro-

Business was first conducted at 51 State street, in the old Merchants' Exchange building, later at 22 Devonshire street, pending the erection of the present Exchange building, to which they removed in June, 1894, where they now occupy a large suit of offices. Today the firm is one of the largest in New England. It employs a large force and maintains offices in New York, Chicago, New Haven, Hartford, Newport and Providence. Its private wire service is said to be one of the most comprehensive and one of the largest

Mr. Hornblower is vice president and one of the governors of the Boston Stock Exchange and director of the First National bank of Arlington.

Mr. Weeks is vice president of the First National bank of Boston, president of the Newtonville Trust company, congressman from the Twelfth Massachusetts and former mayor of Newton. Wollaston Baptist A Prosperous Church

The Wollaston Baptist church held their annual business meting on Thursday, April 18. The pleasant evening brought out a good attendance, something over two hundred and both sociability and business were enjoyable. A good supper was a happy prelude to the subsequent proceedings of the evening.

At eight o'clock the meeting was called to order.

After prayer by the pastor and reading of the records by the clerk, the reports of the various committees were presented. These were interesting and highly satisfactory as indicating a condition of healthful growth and activity in the church The total amount raised during the year was slightly over $5,100.06. Of this $1,723.00 went to missions and charities, home and foreign. The year closed with a balance on hand of $295.00.

Do Not Commit the Error of Comparing Your Wife's Early Culinary Efforts With the Perfection Acquired by Your Mother After a Lifetime of Training-Be Complimentary.

[Copyright, 1905, by C. S. Yost.] Y DEAR JOHN-Your mother requests me to inclose her recipe for making biscuits for which you asked her. She is too tired to write tonight, but in this connection she has made a few remarks, and, as you have reason to know, there's always more good hoss sense in what she says than you can find in a day's search through the writings of the philosophers, from Plato to Tom Lawson. I have a few thoughts of my own on the subject, and I am going to mix them up with those of your mother and send 'em along for your edification-sort of an admonitory sandwich in which the meat is from her and crusts from your dad.

The joke about mother's biscuits is so old that these scientific fellows who "chase the panting syllable back to Noah's ark" have found traces of it in the ruins of Nineveh, and it is apparent that it had lost its youthful freshness even then. But the fact that it survives the centuries proves that it is an illustration of an immortal crisis in family affairs. The gustatory sense is most acute in youth. As boys our chief characteristic is an internal and unappeasable hunger. Everything we put anto our little insides, from batter cakes to ice cream soda, gives us enjoyment that is animal in its ferocity. Naturally the person who provides us with the pleasures of the table during this period becomes the culinary ideal of our lives. You never taste such mince pies as mother used to make. Mother makes the same pies now, uses the same ingredients and mixes them with the same consummate skill, but they wouldn't give you the supreme satisfaction they once did. The trouble isn't with the pies, my boy. It is that you have changed.

Not a Parallel Case.

So for this reason and some others it is not fair to compare your wife's cooking with that upon which you fed in your growing days. In these times of really practical cooking schools it is possible to find young women who can give the most experienced housewives a handicap and beat 'em by a length. Understand me, I say it is possible, but you would probably have to search a long time before discovering such a one. Cooking schools, however excellent, are like all other schools. They merely lay the foundations of an education that must be completed in the postgraduate university of practical experience, and it is only once in awhile that they turn out a full fledged cook. The average young housewife knows a little-usually a very littleabout cooking, and yet the average man expects her to have the culinary skill of a $10,000 chef or of a woman who has been superintending a kitchen for a generation. What they ought to do, what you ought to do, is to forget that you ever had a mother when you come to the table, and, if you can't help making comparisons, for heaven's sake keep 'em to yourself. Give her a chance. She'll learn, and with a little encouragement she'll soon be making pies as good as mamma's best. You parisons or criticisms,

There have been about as many homes broken up by smart Alecky husbands as there have been from causes recognized by the law. Your wife may French and fancy work, and Bob undertook to show her. What she lacked spunk, and inside of two weeks she down on his knees asking for forgiveness. It was a case of genuine love, and they fixed it up. Today she is one of the best housekeepers and one of the most faithful and devoted wives in America, but she wouldn't have been if Bob his tactics. As out to you bebreak one of ness with an ox goad. If you drive her at all, Hang his crown and it must be with scepter on the rack. a blind bridle and a cluck suggesting encouragement, but never force. Hold the reins if you must, but when you find it necessary to pull on them do it so gently that she won't suspect it. I used to have a filly that would take the bit in her teeth and run away every time I cracked the whip, but give her a lump of sugar, pat her on the back, and she would go at any pace I wanted. That's the way you've got to treat a woman if you want to have a home where peace and happiness prevail.

Compliments Cost Nothing. Compliments will accomplish more in a month than criticisms in a lifetime. Don't you suppose she knows as well as you when anything is wrong with the cooking, and do you imagine that her mortification and disappointment will be relieved by your measly kicks? Not on your life! On the other hand, don't you suppose that she knows you're lying when you praise the batter cakes you can hardly swallow? Of course she does, but nevertheless the load that you put in your stomach you lift from her heart, and she inwardly resolves to do better if she has to break her arm stirring batter. She realizes that you are a hypocrite, but she knows that you are a hero, and she can't find fault with hypocrisy that is prompted by your love for her. Carping criticism is just as useless in any other department of household affairs. Man may be lord of creation, but he wants to hang his crown and scepter on the hall rack when he enters the home. That is woman's realm, and it is eminently right and proper that there he should play second fiddle. He gets up in the morning, swallows a hasty breakfast and hustles off to his own. Judicious praise, my boy, is evening, eats a heavy dinner, reads awhile or goes out to a club and then goes to bed. Home is to him simply a place to eat and sleep. What does he know about the details of household management? What does he know about the thousand and one annoyances and difficulties which confront every good housewife, and, not knowing, how can he place a proper value on results? The wife lives at home. The greater part of her duties and responsibilities is bounded by its four walls. Here she should have full sway, her only limitations the size of her husband's purse and the conditions of his labor. By his advice and sympathy he can do much to relieve her troubles and make her way more pleasant.

Encourage Her Home Instinct.

The home instinct is strong in nearly all women, and the majority will do everything possible to make home pleasant if given proper assistance and encouragement. They will make mistakes, of course. I have yet to see the man who doesn't. But in most cases they can see them as quickly as the creatures in trousers who assume to know it all and will do much more to correct them than he can possibly ask if they are let alone. There are times, I will admit, when it becomes advisable-nay, absolutely necessary-for a man to call his wife's attention to errors she has overlooked or willfully made. He should always remember, however, that it is his wife and not his won't be able to enjoy them quite so office boy he is dealing with and that well, because you have lost some of diplomacy will do more with a woman your capacity for enjoyment, and you than a big stick, no matter how vigorcan't appreciate their equal excellence ously used. Disorder and Unrest Quelled by President Roosevelt

THE REVIEW OF WARSHIPS

Officers of Ships of Several Nations A Received by the Chief Executive-Beautiful Marine Picture Presented at Night In Hampton Roads

Norfolk, April 27 .- While the James bown exposition, which is to remain open until Nov. 30 next, is still far from complete, the unfinished condition of buildings and grounds was not allowed to interfere in any way with yesterday's celebration of the 300th anniversary of the first English settlement in America.

Not he least impressive of the day's events was the quick action of Presi dent Roosevelt in assuming command of the situation in front of the crowded grandstand from which he spoke when a panic seized the surging throng of spectators. Pressed against the guard ropes by thousands of eager persons in the rear of the gathering who were force ing their way forward, the safety of life and limb of those who had the more favered positions were endangered.

President Roosevelt had just been introduced by President Tucker of the Jamestown Exposition company when the disorder and unrest in the crowd reached its height and the civil guards in front of the grandstand seemed about to be swept from their posts. The president jumped upon the table which had been placed in the speaker's balcony and, waving his arms. cried out to the men of Virginia to live up to their traditions of gallantry and cease the pushing and crowding which was threatening the lives of the women and children in the assemblage.

The crowd heeded the warning at first, but when the president had settled down to his speech those on the outskirts began to press forward again. The president was interrupted and mounted officers and United States cavsirymen were called to take charge They rode up and down along the front of the crowd and gradually opened i up and relieved the pressure. A detachment of artillerymen on foot, also, was called and the crowd at last became a peaceful assemblage.

Apparently oblivious to the unusual position he occupied on the top of a somewhat shaky table, not more than two feet wide and four feet long, President Roosevelt made his speech and did not allow the unsteady platform to interfere in the slightest with the charac teristic vigor of his delivery.

A fairer day has never been seen than that which attended to the opening of the exposition. The heat at times was uncomfortable, but it was always tem-

The boom of ship cannon signalled the beginning of the review by the president of the most formidable fleet of international battleships and cruisers the world has witnessed in many years. On board the Mayflower, the president, with a few especially invited guests, was greeted first by a salute of 21 guns from each of the vessels, foreign and American. Then as he steamed along the lane of the visiting men-of-war he was saluted individually and in turn by every battleship and cruiser at anchor in the roads. The marine picture was at once imposing and impressive. When his yacht had anchored in the very midst of the naval vesse's, the president received on board the flag and commanding officers of the foreign fleet and the flag officers of the home squadrons. To each of the visitors the president had a cordial word of greeting, expressing his pleasure in meeting them on home waters. The hospitality of the nation was extended by the president, who in turn received from his visitors many expressions of the esteem in which he personally and the American people as a whole are held by the sovereigns whose ambassadors they were.

The president landed at the exposi tion grounds shortly after 11 a.m. The immense government piers undergoing construction are still many weeks from completion and it was with some difficulty that a way was cleared for even the light launches in which the presi dent and the naval officers of the various squadrons made the journey to shore. Booming cannon again greeted four minutes, but was pronounced dead the president as he stepped ashore. The president was driven to the grandstand on the parade between two lines The ceremonies of dedication were brief, the feature being the addresses of President Tucker of the exposition and President Roosevelt. The latter against the sultan, who is accused of at the conclusion of his address pressed the gold button which marked the open ing of the commemorative enterprise Then followed an informal luncheon to the president and 40 other guests in the administration building. The repast elded, the president repaired again to the grandstand, from which he reviewed a parade of United States soldiers and sailors. Seamen from the visiting fleets were expected to take part in the parade, but the difficulty in landing them on the uncompleted grounds prevented their participation. The parade was quickly over and a reception by the president in the auditorium brought the day's events at the fair grounds to a close. Hampton Roads blazed brilliantly last night with the lights of half a hun- | Ergland.

dred mighty vessels of war. The illumination of the combined fleets of Great Britain, Germany, Austria, the Argentine Republic and the United States crowned with fitting splendor the magnificent day picture. The daylight decorations of vari-colored signal flags, stretched in fluttering strings from stem to stern, gave way with the setting sun to the glow of thousands of electric bulbs and the far-reaching flash of searchlights.

The vessels of the American fleet were completely outlined in incandescent bulbs. Military masts and turrets, waterline and freeboard were strung with the fairy-like filament lanterns and in bold letters across the bridge the name of the vessel burned the identity of the big fighter into the night A brilliant moon shone over the waters and added vastly to the beauty of the

The vessels of the visiting fleets were also gorgeously arrayed in light effects, some of the designs being decidedly unique and interesting. The searchlight drills were watched with wonderment by those on shore and with unstinted admiration by American officers and sailors.

Although the utmost care is taken to conceal the sourse of the reports, nevertheless the name of Judge Harmon of Ohio, former Attorney General of the United States and Judge Gray of Delaware, are being put forward prominently as Democrats who would in every way be acceptable to the rank and file of the Democratic party. In the head quarters of the Democratic national committee and the Democratic Congressional committee, the names of these men are being handled with ever-increasing frequency. Ii would not be at all surprising if Bryan's government ownership and initiative and referedum thories had already alarmed the conservative element of the party to the same extent that his 16 to 1 program did in 1896. In any event both Judge Gray and Judge Harmon are very much in the public eye at present as presidential possibilities.

Specifications have been sent out this week by the Treasury Depart ment for the new derelict destroying vessel which was authorized by the last Congress for use in the north Atlantic. This destroyer will be the most modern craft of its kind in the world. It will operate largely off the New England coast and its business will be to destroy floating wrecks However, the craft, which is to be built under the direction of the revenue cutter service, will be much more than a destroyer of wrecks. It is intended to equip it in such a manner that it will be able to render as sistance to vessels in distress and it will be provided with a complete outfit of life-saving apparatus.

The Sermon By Dr Van Allen

On Friday evening a public service of admission to the Girls' Friendly society was held in St. Chrysostom's church, Wollaston. Twenty-six members and associates were admitted. The processional hymn, "The Churches's one foundation," was followed by the usual G. F. S. service led by the Rev. William H. van Allen, D.D., rector of Church of the Advent, Boston, after which the candidates went forward to the chancel rail and were presented by the Branch Secretary, Mrs. H. D. Fowler, to their chaplain, Rev. A. Edwin Clattenburg, who read the office of admission and gave to each one the official pin. An eloquent and most helpful sermon was preached by Rev. Dr. van Allen. He took for his text "Ye are my friends, if & C. F. PETTENGILL. ye do whatsoever I command you.' The service concluded with the recesstonal bymn, "Rejoice ye pure in April 27

Thomas Beechman

By the death of Mr. Thomas Beecham at his home in Southport, England, on Saturday, April 6, a man whose name was a household word in every hamlet, vilage, town and city on the face of the globe has passed into the Great Beyond, leaving his friends, acquaintances and his commercial world to mourn a most interesting and lovable personality. He has left a monument to his memory in the gigantic business establishment he created and placed upon a solid, lasting and prosperous basis, and in the hearts of those who knew him both in business and in private

Mr. Beecham was the founder of the great pill manufactories in Europe and America and which had their small beginning in the town of Wigan over half a century ago. It seems almost incredible that the great manufacturing establishments of Beecham's Pills should have built their enormous success around an accidental remark dropped by a lady customer, that these pills were "Worth a guinea a box." But this remark was the catchword, the slogan of an advertising campaign which in 1890 was roughly estimated to cost $500,000 a year-the largest campaign of publicity and success known to the commercial world. It placed Mr. Beecham in the front rank of men who had achieved a great success through natural aptitude and indomitable Saving the Colors.

An Indiana regiment was fiercely attacked by a whole brigade in one of the battles in Mississippi. The Indianians, unable to withstand such odds were compelled to fall back a short distance, losing their flag, which remained in the hands of the enemy. Suddenly a tall Irishman, a private in the color company, rushed from the ranks across the vacant ground, attacked the squad of the enemy who had possession of the conquered flag, with his musket felled several to the ground, snatched the flag from them and returned safely back to his regiment. The bold fellow was immediately surrounded by his jubilant comrades and praised for his gallantry. His captain appointed him to a sereverything short by the reply: "Oh, never mind, captain! Say no more about it. I dropped my whisky flask among the rebels and fetched that back, and I thought I might just as well bring the flag along."

A Revolution In Chilombia.

By GEORGE KENNETT.

Copyright, 1907 by P. C. Eastment.

The D'Estes family was of the haughiest in Chilombia. Papa D'Estes was a retired dictator, not yet entered into that permanent rest which the cemetery affords to most Spanish-American patriots at or before the end of their official careers. His best energies were now engrossed in cremating malodorous eigarros and in irrigating certain arid tracts of his interior with aguardiente. Mamma D'Estes does not count in this story save as the parent of seven sons and one daughter enumerated below. There were Brother Alfonso, who was destined for the presidency, and Brother Juan, for the generalship of the army, and Brother Leon, for the archbishopric, and so on through the list to little Brother Cristofero, who was to fill some older brother's place should any elect a foreign ministership instead of service at home. But the flowed and darling of the household was Sister Esmerelda. She was to wed the highest official in the republic outside her own family unless indeed some foreign potentate should seek her hand.

Two gallants wooed the rose of the D'Estes, both of the Chilombia aristocracy and both of the staff from which dictators and presidents are made-Senor Caballero and Senor Lockinvar. Of these two Esmerelda appeared to favor the latter, to his rival's great discomfiture

The situation irked Caballero's soul. True, he might pistol or knife his enemy returning some pleasant night from serenading his inamorata. But he knew that suspicion would at once be directed toward him and his chances of winning Esmerelda forever destroyed. He might challenge his foe to a duel, but Lochinvar was a better shot than he. Decidedly things could not be worse. What was the remedy? Like a homing pigeon, he turned to the refuge of his race-a revolution.

Caballero sat himself down to think, a thing he did only on special occasions. The lines of revolutionary cleavage must be such that he and Papa D'Estes should find themselves on one side and Lochinvar on the other. The smoke of his cigarro furnished inspiration.

Only two kinds of tobacco are smoked in Chilombia-Bogota and La Paz. Caballero and Papa D'Estes were of the cremators of Bogota, while Lochinvar clave to those who calcined La Paz. There was 60 per cent duty on Bogota, only 40 on La Paz. Here was revolutionary tinder with a vengeance. Caballero quietly kindled the flame. Soon the populace were boiling like a superheated chocolate pot. The hot blood of the descendants of the Incas

Behold at last a just and stable government! There would never be any more revolutions. Everybody was puffing Bogota. La Paz was synonymous with high treason. But they still irrigated with aguardiente; nothing could prevent that.

Caballero's comet was at its zenith. The dictatorship lay within his grasp. He called Papa D'Estes into consultation and formally requested the hand of Senorita Esmerelda. He promised sitions in the Chilombian state.

lombia. But now the people began to tire of Bogota. The daily journals voiced vague hints of tyranny. Stealthy whiffs, elusive scents of La Paz permeated the Chilombian atmosphere.

The wedding day arrived. Caballero and his best man set out for the cathedral. As they turned a corner the perfume of an invisible cigarro drifted to the dictator's nostrils. He paled and became silent. It was La Paz! The tide was turning. The revolutionary pendulum had begun its counter swing. But he determined, at any rate, to make sure of Esmerelda. He waited at the church for half an hour. Then came a messenger posthaste from the D'Estes household to say that the wedding must be indefinitely postponed. Esmerelda had fled that morning to the mountains with Lochinvar. Caballero was furious. He urged immediate pursuit. Papa D'Estes and his sons procrastinated. They spoke casually of Lochinvar's well known skill with pistol and rifle. Finally the dictator started on the trail of the lovers. The father and the seven brethren followed, but without enthusiasm. In the middle of the afternoon they came in sight of Lochinvar and Esmerelda hastening along a narrow road cut in the rocky wall of a deep canyon. Just ahead a swinging bridge of ropes and wooden crosspieces spanned the river sullenly murmuring 3,000 feet below. On the other side of the gorge the road ran north to Bogota, south to La Paz. Once across, if the fugitives could destroy the bridge they would be safe.

Caballero shouted triumphantly and spurred his jaded horse forward, Lochinvar hastened across the span with Esmerelda. Ere they reached the middle the dictator had dismounted and set foot upon the swaying structure.

Lochinvar looked back and took in the situation. He drew his machete One quick slash, and the left cable sprang asunder. The bridge hung quivering. Heedless of the cry of horror behind, he dropped his knife, gathered the fainting Esmerelda in his arms and staggered across to safety.

The dictator was so far advanced that it was as safe for him to keep on as to return. Just as the last strands parted he gained the solid rock not fifty feet behind the fugitives who were hurrying toward La Paz. With a cry of triumph he started in pursuit.

A shout from the other side made him halt. He looked across the gorge. There stood the D'Estes family in line, eight Mausers swung carelessly in their left hands, eight monitory right forefingers pointing toward Bogota. The dictator was on the wrong side of the river. For a hundred miles either way there was no other bridge. It would be days before he could get back to the capital of Chilombia. Meanwhile the new revolution would have made his presence unnecessary.

Caballero took a step toward La Paz. Seven Mausers went up to seven right shoulders, all but little brother Cristofero's, who was left handed. His went up to his left. Eight forefingers touch-

Caballero stopped. He was too good a mark against the rock. Then they returned to Chilombia and engineered the revolution that put them in control of the state and fulfilled the parents' most ambitious dreams for their seven sons.

> When Lochinvar and his bride came back after their honeymoon, they were received with open arms. Everybody in town was smoking La Paz, and they were still drinking aguardiente.

If she had seemed graceful to him before in the drawing room of Runton House and surrounded by some of the most beautiful women in the country, she seemed more than ever so now seated in the somewhat worn chair of his little studio. The color, too, seemed to have come back to her cheeks. She seemed to have regained in some measure her girlishness. Her eyes were ever ready to laugh into his. She chatted away as though the world, after all, contained nothing more serious for her than for any other girl. Duncombe hated to

Her face grew suddenly grave. "There is so little," she murmured,

I told him-liar that I was-that I could not carry the memory of your face in my mind when it was already engraven in my heart. And I went off to Paris, Phyllis, like the veriest Don Quixote, and I came back very sad indeed when I could not find you. Then you came to Runton House and the trouble began. So Far as They Relate to Athletic Relations With Dartmouth

BROWN'S SHUTTERS UP

Providence, April 27 .- The board of directors of the Brown University Athletic association unanimously voted to sever all athletic relations with Dart mouth college. In the judgment of the board, the withdrawal of Dartmouth i Wednesday's baseball game as a resul of a dispute over a decision of the umpire "is simply one of a long series of incidents which render such action nec essary and advisable in the interest of college sport.

Hanover, N. H., April 27.-Professor Bartlett, president of the Dartmouth athletic council, was informed of the ac tion of the Brown University Athleti association in severing all athletic relations with Dartmouth as the result of the Dartmouth team withdrawing from the basebail field, following the ques tioned decision of the umpire in Wednesday's game. He said:

"The Dartmouth has not returned to Hanover since the incident with Brown at Providence and we have therefore not had opportunity to investigate the incident in connection with the Brown game. I personally, however, deplore what I feel to be the unsportsmanlike act of the Dartmouth captain and feel that it has damaged the reputation of the college.

"It seems to me that Brown is taking advantage of a somewhat slight provocation in thus hastily breaking off relations with a college between which and itself there has been built up in the past few years a very wholesome spirited and clean rivalry."

Adam's Vocabulary.

There is some curiosity as to the size of Father Adam's vocabulary. As he had to invent to fit the necessities that arose, it undoubtedly was what might be called a working vocabulary. Presumably it didn't equal in dimensions that of Mother Eve. She needed a larger one. "I made up a new word today, Ad," she would say, and then the two would talk it over and perhaps smooth it down or polish it up. And maybe Adam would think up a new word while he paraded up and down in his bare feet through the chunk of jungle that they called front yard trying to get one of the baby boys to sleep. It didn't take much to suggest new words in those days. When Adam stubbed his toe or stepped on a hornet his vocabulary would promptly receive several additions that were of the more forcible than elegant class. And she had a way of repeating them a great many times to Adam's profound discomfiture. No, Adam's vocabulary wasn't big enough to deserve the name It wasn't even a near vocabulary-i was just a bunch of half baked words.

understood although almost everybody thinks they know all about it. The main reason that many persons ask for a license as a common vic ualler is that they may keep their place of business open on Sunday and do the same kind of business as tha done by the stores on week days. It is true that common victuller license permits a person to keep his or her store open on Sundays but it also provides that the holder of suc a license must do certain things. Among these things is to be provided with cooking utensils so as to b able to prepare and serve food. They must also display on the outside of the entrance to their place of busi ness a sign denoting that they are a licensed victualler.

Some of the holders of thes li censes comply with the law in ever respect but a great majority of them lo not, and evidently have no inten ion of so doing until forced to it. Public sentiment in Quincy has be come greatly aroused of late years over the constantly increasing num ber of places granted this form of a license and it demands that the numper of such licenses be greatly reduced this year. This is the problem that has been put up to the Committee on Licenses of the City Counor them to decide.

Protests have been received from elerymen, societies and churches, as well as from the Grocers' association who complain that parties have been granted a common victualler's liense who are nothing but grocers and who ucs their license for the ourpose of doing of grocery business on the Lord's day, and thus injure in art for the triumph of this mo- formed near the ice cream table waiting next few months will be unpregrocers who believe in shorter hours. She Threw Up Her Job As Cook

The family of Benjamin Johnson of School street are minus their cook. She was a newly arrived Swede girl, not accustomed to some things American, particularly phospate. Ben has a beautiful lawn about his nouse and in order to give it nourishment he procured a bag of phospate. Sunday morning the cook, to show how much she knew, decided to make some graham muffins for breakfast. Mistaking the phospate for graham flour, she made a mixture, the odor of which penetrated the whole house and drove the cook out of doors. No amount of explaining could convince the girl what the trouble was, and she threw up the job.

UNREST IN COTTON MILLS

New England Operatives May Ask Advance In Wages--Various Sections of the Country Report Conditions Better Than For Many Years

Boston, April 29 .- According to the union officers and business agents of workingmen's organizations, the industrial situation in New England May will be marked by fewer contentions between capital and labor than for many years. In the building trades several small strikes are threatened in  a number of cities, but in Boston there promises to be little suspension of work in any branch of the industry.

The building laborers' unions, the nembers of which are unskilled, have equested new wage rates in Boston and vicinity. It is understood that prospects for a settlement without a strike are favorable.

The painters of eastern Massachusetts are endeavoring to establish a uniform wage of $3 a day minimum in metropolitan Boston, but there will be no strike on May 1, as the wage quesion will not be adjusted until later. The boilermakers of Boston and vicinity have been granted a 71/2 percent increase, to take effect May 1, and although the men, of whom there are several thousand, asked for a 10 percent advance, they have accepted the rate of-

The most serious condition existing in Boston is due to the strike a month ago of teamsters. The strike is still unsettled. In New England at large there are several causes for unrest in The last day of April was the warmest cotton mills, and it is reported that an attempt will be made to advance wages n Fall River and other places some time during next month. In Milford, Mass., the granite cutters are out for a new working agreement, and an effort is being made to have Governor Guild try to settle the trouble.

Harmony In Chicago

Chicago, April 29 .- The relations be ably never so harmonious in Chicago as they are now. Every union in the buildstructural iron workers, has renewed contracts with employers, and the iron workers expect to reach a settlement without a strike. Machinists have demanded an increase of 25 cents a day in wages, but the indications are that there will practically be no trouble in putting the new schedule into effect. Most of the larger firms in the city have signified a willingness to grant the increase. The brickmakers are now holding con ferences with their employers and will probably soon reach a settlement.

Pittsburg Scales Signed Pittsburg, April 29 .- May day in Pittsburg and vicinity is expected to pass off with less labor disputes than in previous years. Heretofore consider able difficulty has been experienced between the workmen and building trades, but this year scales have been signed and the men are apparently satisfied. With the exception of the ma chinists, about 300 of whom are already or strike, it is believed all the wage scales will be amicably adjusted. BIG STANDING ARMY

General Staff's Scheme Not Well Received In Cuba

IT CALLED FOR 12,000 MEN

Would Be Equivalent, In Proportion to Population, to a Half a Million Soldiers In United States--Other Serious Objections Pointed Out

Havana, April 29.—The plan of a Cuban standing army of 12,000 men, as suggested by the general staff of the American army, is the most attractive to that element of the Cuban people which is fond of the gold lace and regalia of Spanish-American armies. But among the conservative elements the plan excites really less interest than the preceding one to recruit the rural guard up to 12,000 men.

The latter plan was vigorously oposed even by the Liberals, who, it was upposed, would have jumped at the op ortunity opened by such a lavish dis ribution of patronage, and, while the tanding army scheme evidently has een framed to meet their objections, the apparent impossibility of this acomplishment has caused it to be received with something like derision. Governor Magoon, who has not yet een advised of any intention of the war department to adopt the elaborate program of the general staff, does not beeve it possible to recruit in the island f Cuba 12,000 soldiers who will come up to the standard of the United States army. This view is fully shared by Cubans experienced in military affairs, who point out that the United States today has such difficulty in obtaining satisfactory recruits for its relatively small establishment of 60,000 men that it cannot keep the ranks of the army of pacification even reasonably full. How then, say they, can Cuba be expected to

While it is true that Cuba is richer in olonels than Kentucky and rivals Hayti in the matter of generals, few of these warriors have any knowledge of nilitary tactics other than those of the

Still more serious objections to the scheme are that it at once imposes of the republic the double burden of auge military establishment, which vill absorb at least one-third of the evenues and diminution of the already hin ranks of labor by just so many nen as are called upon to bear arms. Apart from these military and ec omic objections there is the pregnant the creation of a standing army. What it is asked, is this army to do, assuming that it be possible to raise it? If th force is designed for insurance against foreign aggression, what becomes of the obligation of the United States to pre serve inviolate the soil of Cuba? If, o the other hand, the army is designed to maintain whatever government may be in power when the American troops evacuate the islands. Cubans predic that it will be in effect a preforian guard, capable of use as a terrible en gine of oppression in the hands of despotic president and ever ready to hurl one tyrant from power and elevate another as the interests of the military caste may dictate. That the project does not excite any ery grave apprehension among Cu bans of any faction is due to the impres sion that the plan is merely a tentativ proposition of the general staff and that the manifest obstacles in the way of its accomplishment render it entirely unlikely of serious consideration by the American government.

PEARY IS WORRIED

Needs $60,000 to Complete Plans For Dash to the Pole

AN APPEAL TO PATRIOTISM

Feeling That American People Should Help Share Financial Burden of the Enterprise -- Confident of Ultimate Success of Undertaking

New York, April 29.-Lack of money-about $60,000-to finance the expedition, may mean the abandonment of the dash to the North Pole, which planned for this summer. The explorer, ng reached "the farthest north" and who may truly be said to live for the ourpose of revealing to the world the nysteries of the pole itself, is deeply downcast at the possibility that he may not be able to try again.

"This is a work which I must dowork for which I was intended," said Peary to a representative of the press. He was not boastful, but modest in manner and with the simplicity of speech of man convinced that he was born for is great purpose and that he must ecomplish it. And with a confidence hat his work must be helped from cmewhere, he added: "The money will ome: somehow I feel certain of that. But if I was only assured now what a celief it would be and how I could conentrate all my energies on the details " the expedition. Remember we were out 174 nautical miles from the goal on our last trip. It would be a pity indeed f we could not try again."

Peary wants to start from New York he latter part of June. His ship, the Roosevelt, which proved her worth on he last expedition, is now being prepared for the next attack on the northern ice fields. But the greater part of he $40,000 already subscribed will be pent in repairing the boat, and $60,000 nore will be needed for general exenses. The Peary Arctic club is carng largely for the refitting of the Roose elt and it has issued an appeal for unds from the people of the United States so that a total of $100,000 may e raised. The club feels, as does Peary, that the people should share in he next expedition. National and patriotic as it is in character, the exlorer undertakes to say that the pracical patriotic impulses of the American people should support him. Subscripions may be sent to Henry Parish at 2 Wall street.

The appropriateness and feasibility of ermitting the public school children to ake part in the movement has been sugested to Peary. It met with his aproyal, but he is in doubt as to how such should be carried out.

"I am not complaining," he said, "but f I was certain about the material aspect of the expedition a great buren would be lifted. Did you ever hink what the detail of preparation for the invasion of the north means? 'Infinite detail' are the words which describe it. If anything is left undone, or anything forgotten, after we have actually got away-then it is too late. only then, is my mind at ease. When we set forth on our long voyage is the first time I may rest. Some times, so great is my exhaustion, I sleep 36 hours at a time.'

To this gigantic task of discovery Peary implicitly believes his fellowcountrymen should lend their interest and their support. The rigor of his roation of his face, and his absolute conidence that he has been assigned to atain the goal, all express his conviction hat he will win.

Peary said that if conditions are favorable, the objects of the expedition night be accomplished in one season. But he might remain north as long as three years. He was preparing, he said, for a long and stern battle.

the man said. "Is Sir George Duncombe at home? "I am Sir George Duncombe," he an-

"We really are heartily ashamed of ourselves for disturbing you at such an hour, Sir George," the man said, "but you will pardon us when you understand the position. I am the Marquis de St. Ethol, and this is my wife. I have a letter to you from my friend the Duke of Chestow, with whom we have been staying."

Duncombe concealed his astonish ment as well as he was able. He bowed to the lady and led them toward the library. Spencer, who had heard then coming, had hastily concealed his revolver and was lounging in an easy chair reading the evening paper. "I am afraid that my servants are all

"I thank you very much," the marquis said. "I will not take anything to thanks!

He lit one and sat on the arm of an easy chair.

"The facts are these," he said. "I have a great friend in Paris who, knowing that I was at Chestow and returning to France tomorrow, has, I fear I must say, taken some advantage of my good nature. I am asked to call here and escort home to her friends a young lady who, I understand, is for the moment a guest under your roof. from my friend Chestow. The Submarine Octopus Built at Quincy In Competition

A Newport dispatch of Monday to the Herald says: Awaiting the signal, the submarine boats Lake and Octopus, now moored in the slips at the government torpedo station at Goat island, are ready to dive under the water of Narragansett bay and to begin the perilous tests of their utility and effectiveness as weapons of naval warfare scheduled to take place Tuesday morning.

Naval experts and submarine builders have arrived here from all quarters to witness the manoeuvers There is strong reason to believe that foreign governments have sent representatives here to spy out the usefulness of the vicious little underwater fighters. Newport fairly swarms with secret service men, and no stranger is allowed on the government reservation. Cameras brought into the grounds are confiscated. The boats will be called upon to go beneath the water to determine the $3,000,000 contract award, and remain there four hours without coming to the surface. Then they will arise and go down again for 20 hours, making in all 24 hours beneath the bay. The crew, with members of the submarine board, will remain in the vessels sleeping and eating their meals there. While the boats are submerged a guard of gunboats and launches will patrol surrounding waters to keep other craft away, for fear some vessel might drop an anchor on one of the submarines. This would probably result in a catastrophe. Torpedoes will be fired from the boats at moving targets while they are under the sea.

that they are the equals of the ones at present in use by the navy. The Octopus is the larger. She was built by the Electric Boat Company of New York at the Fore River yards, and the Lake was contructed by the Lake

Torpedo Boat Company. The Octopus has a displacement of 225 tons, carries four torpedoes and has a radius of 1000 miles. This submarine does not dive, but sinks, while the Lake dives and shoots up to the surface when ready. A feature of the Lake is a diving compartment, from which a diver can be sent out from

The Burgera sub-surface boat will also be tested. This craft has two hulls, one of which rests on the surface of the water while the submarine hull is many feet below. Unlike most torpedo boats, this one can go to sea alone. It is said to be practically invulnerable, having a series of compartments filled with celulose. If a shell pierces one of these compartments the cellulose expands on coming in contact with water and fills up the hole. The sub-surface boat has an armor-clad conning

Bennington, Vt., April 30.-Whatever mystery attached to the murder of little Ethel Mahan, 4 years old, whose body was found Sunday night in a gravel pit in North Bennington with the throat cut and evidences of a criminal assault, has been cleared up, according to a statement made by Deputy Sheriff God-frey. Ruptur eat Very Beginning of Session Over the Army Bill

INSULT TO FORCES OF CZAR

Harangue by Socialist, Which Is Backed by His Fellows, Cause Great Tumult--Is Finally Deprived of Right to Floor and Rebuked

St. Petersburg, April 30.-A savage

attack made on the army and the gov ernment by M. Zuraboff, a Socialist, during the first executive session of the lower house of parliament, which was devoted to a debate on the bill fixing the number of recruits to be called to the colors, produced a rupture between the ministers and the douma which for a time threatened to precipitate the dis solution of the house.

After Zuraboff's harangue, in which he declared that under an autocratic regime the army was worthless except against the people and that it was beaten whenever it engaged in a foreign war, the ministers withdrew from th house and served an ultimatum or President Golovine that unless the of fensive expressions were retracted b Zuraboff and the rule providing fo temporary suspension was applied against him they would sever all future relations with the douma.

President Golovine was unable to have the demand complied with, as the Radicals supported their colleague solidly and the Poles refused to vote. The suspension and formal rebuke by Zura boff, however, was pronounced by the president of the chamber, but this failed to satisfy the ministers. who subsequently ordered the government ex perts to withdraw from the evening ses sion of the budget commission.

Immediately after adjournment Pre mier Stolypin summoned an extraor dinary session of the cabinet, which ar parently brought matters to an issue between the premier and the reaction ary members of his ministry. What transpired is not known, but at mid night Stolypin summoned Golovine and informed him that the incident had caused serious friction in the cabinet He hoped, however, a way would be found today to arrange matters withou fatal consequences to the douma.

To the Constitutional Democrati steering committee, which agitated the conference last night, this news brough great relief and no measures on their part will be omitted today to end the incident when the executive session is resumed.

The early discussion of the army bill in the douma yesterday was stormy, bu the culmination came at 6:30 p. m. when Zuraboff made his speech. scene was one of indescribable pande monium. President Golovine, when he had restored things to a semblance of order, attempted to explain away Zura boff's words as a criticism of the old army under the old regime, both of which had passed away. He then sus pended the session for 10 minutes in order to allow the passions of the members to cool.

The recess was protracted for almost two hours while a series of weighty conferences were being held and reports by telephone were made to Stolypin and the czar. Finally Minister of War Rudiger, on behalf of his colleagues, announced the ministerial ultimatum, adding that the czar would never stand such insults to his faithful

When the house reassembled Golovine announced that, owing to the tumult, he had not clearly understood the purport of Zuraboff's remarks and, after having read the stenographer's report, he found the reflections upon the army unparliamentary and inadmissible in debate. Therefore, he deprived Zuraboff of right to the floor and in posed upon him a formal rebuke. I. G. Tzereteli, a Social Democrat immediately claimed recognition. He declared Zuraboff had spoken on be half of the entire Social Democratic faction, which shared his sentiments. The tumult again broke loose and the members of the right refused to permit Tzereteli to continue. President Golo vine swung the president's bell -frantically and was heard to shout that unless the uproar ceased he would resign. but order was not restored until the Social Democrats, the Social Revolutionists and other members of the opposition, with Tzereteli at their head, filed M. Golovine requested the house to express approval on their course and this was voted by the minority members remaining. The douma was then adjourned.

Honduran Rebels Are Now Wrangling Among Themselves

CHOSE THREE PRESIDENTS

Each Was to Have Fifteen Days In Office and Fighting Began When Bonilla's Friends Stepped In--Nicaraguans In Possession of Capital

New Orleans, April 30 .- A dispatch from Puerto Cortez, Honduras, says: Fresh fighting has occurred in Honduras, the latest being a battle in the streets of the capital city between the factions of the victorious Honduran rebels, who a few weeks ago helped Nicaragua overthrow the government.

A letter which escaped the censorship and arrived here says that the troops of the junta opened hostilities among themselves. The fighting was brought on because of a somewhat unusual kind of government which the leaders had

Three of the leaders, Rosales, Bustillo and Castro, agreed to take turns as president, each serving 15 days. It developed, however, that each during his term attempted to strengthen his party by dividing up the patronage where it yould do him most good. Finally the friends of Bonilla proclaimed Bustillo provisional president without any 15-day clause, and the opposing factions did the same for Rosales. Then fight-

Troops of both sides occupied what is known as University place, adjoining the palace. Rosales, from a window of the presidential palace, shouted to and a battle was on in the principal business streets of Tegucigalpa, Bady aimed bullets showered upon the ouses, but caused only seven deaths.

An almost comic opera ending closed this battle when General Davila, provisional president, rushed among the combatants and persuaded their leaders to stop the fighting.

The couple had been married for about five years, Mrs. Holden being divorced from her first husband. She evidently planned the deed, which was committed with a 32-calibre revolver.

The three bodies were in the bed room occupied by Mr. and and Mrs. Holden, the husband in bed, the boy on a cot and the woman lying unconscious on the floor between the two.

On account of her extreme nervous condition, Mrs. Holden's husband's rest had been greatly disturbed of late and a knowledge of this had troubled her greatly. In order to relieve her husband of the annoyance, she proposed last night that her son should occupy the chamber with Holden, while she went upstairs to the third floor to the com where her son has usually slept.

The theory is that after going upstairs to the room on the third floor, Mrs. Holden, actuated by a sudden freak of nervous insanity secured a revolver and, descending to the room where her husband and son were sleep ing, fired the shots as they lay uncon-

WORMS IN CHILDREN

6 YEARS SUFFERING RELIEVED IN 8 HOURS

DR. TRUE, DEAR SIR: -One of my boys had been troubled for about six years with cramp in the stomach, and suspecting that it might be brought on by worms, we gave him different medicines, but without effect. Last January he had a more severe attack than usual, and hearing of the almost miraculous effects of your Elixir, we gave him about a tea-spoonful, and in about eight hours it brought from him a living creature about eighteen inches in length. He has had no return of them since, and is now very G. W. VICKERY.

No matter how pronounced or how light the symptoms,

Opposition In Boston To Granting The Privilege

The trolley express@fight has now been transferred to the aldermanic chamber at Boston, which shows that Quincy is not yet a missing link. A Boston paper says: Henry M. Whitney, former Congressman John A. Sullivan and C. Howard Walker of the Boston Society of Architects were among the many remonstrants who appeared before the board of aldermen Monday afternoon to oppose the petition of the Boston Elevated Railway Company for permission to carry baggage, express and freight on its tracks in Boston.

The hearing was assigned for clock but as there were many pet ioners and remonstrants to be heard the board voted to refer the matter to the committee on public improvements which constitutes the whole board, with instructions to give a public hearing, after former Congressan Sullivan had been heard.

While Mr. Whitney was ready to e preferred to wait for the final hearng, when informed of the proposed action by Acting Chairman Berwin. In addressing the board, former ongressman Sullivan said in part

The petition of the Boston Elevated Railway Company for the priviege of carrying freights upon all the ines of its railway in the city of Boson is as bold a request as has ever een made of the city authorities As the petition stands, there cannot be two views as to the wisdom of dismissing it, for surely no one could be ound who would put freight and baggage cars upon all the lines of treet railways in the city.
